SURPLUS WILL SHOW OCEANS OF MONEY

GOOD NEWS FOR TAXPAYER FURTHER REDUCTION IS SURE

The President Admonishes To Beware of Waste or Hope Is Gone—It's his Appeal To Government Workers—Public Debt Lowered One Billion Yearly Thru the Budget System the Executive Discloses—"Economy Does Not Mean Neglect of Essentials"—Flood Protection Promised.

President Coolidge declared Friday night in his semi-annual budget speech that the United States treasury would have an unprecedented surplus of $599,000,000 in its ample funds at the close of the year's business June 30.

The president held out the rosy promise of a substantial tax slash in the next session of congress, estimating that the following treasury surplus on which the cut will be based, will total $338,000,000.

But in his remarkable report of Uncle Sam's prosperity, as measured by the government finances, President Coolidge denounced the possibility of government extravagances and plead with the 500,000 public employees to continue the practice of economy with their commendable alertness.

"One thing is certain," he warned, "Unless we succeed in holding expenditures at about their present level, hope of further tax reduction will be gone."

Memorial Continental hall was jammed to the doors as a president of the United States met for the thirtieth time with government employees, ranging from cabinet officers to fair stenographers to discuss the affairs of the government which they run together. Their semi-annual session was moved up a day that official Washington may be free Saturday to give Captain Charles A. Lindbergh the greetings of the nation.

President Coolidge declared to them that "we are conducting the greatest business in the world, and it is necessary that the public employees must give the people a run for their money—that every dollar of the people's money expended should get one dollar's worth of materials or labor in return."

Mr. Coolidge revealed that in the seven years since the budget has been in operation the public debt has been reduced at the rate of $100,000,000 a year. The extent of that saving he illustrated by the striking fact that the interest charges on the public debt will be reduced by $63,000,000 next year.

Another illustration of how public debts eat into the public income was the fact that the government's interest charges on its debt have amounted to more than $8,000,000,000 in the last ten years.

The government's receipts from customs and internal revenue were estimated at $3,426,485,000 he said, but as a matter of fact they will be $15,515,000 in excess of the estimate. The government expenditures will be $100,000,000 less than was estimated for the current year, he said. Tax refunds have been $25,000,000 less than the estimate, he said, and there have been moderate profits from the sale of capital assets held by the government, such as railroad securities.

The prosperity of the nation and economy by the government followed each other in a happy circle, each contributing its share to the splendid financial condition of the national government, the president said.

"I do not hesitate to say," he declared, "that one of the greatest safeguards of this nation, financially, socially and morally, lies in constructive economy in government.

"Economy does not mean the neglect of essentials. It gives the added protection which comes from the means to meet a time of emergency.

To those who had urged that the vast treasury surplus be turned entirely into tax reduction, President Coolidge justified its application to the national debt by saying, "In the business of government, as in private business, the time to liquidate indebtedness is in the time of prosperity."

Historic Battles

The battle of Shiloh was the costliest in life of any battle of the Civil war, but it is said more men were killed in the twelve-mile radius embracing the field of Fredericksburg, Spotsylvania, Chancellorsville and the Wilderness than in any similar area in modern history prior to the World war.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Gallipolis—A herd of cattle, numbering 150, stampeded into the Ohio river while being ferried and attempted to swim across yesterday. Fourteen drowned. Swimming cattle were recovered as far as seven miles down stream.

Columbus — Revenue received by the state show an increase of $3,000,000 during the next two years as result of the passage of the Aigler corporation franchise tax by the recent legislature, State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy predicted today. The new act is in effect now and the taxes are due by July 15.

Cincinnati—George S. Stearns, 35, former Cincinnati, committed suicide early yesterday at his home on the fashionable Bayshore drive, Miami, Florida, according to a dispatch received.

Canton—With Louis E. Mazer, first man arrested for the murder of Don R. Mellett, under sentence of 5 to 20 years in the state penitentiary, County Prosecutor Henry W. Harter Jr., moved today to gather new evidence against Seranus A. Lengel, former Canton police chief, the last to be indicted.

Canton — C. C. Curtis, former mayor removed from office by Governor A. V. Donahey, is among four Republicans who have filed petitions for nomination as mayor in the August primary.

Canton — Followers of Grant and Sherman, men who tramped with Sherman to the sea, tottering veterans of a hundred engagements of the Civil war, began gathering today for the 61st annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic of Ohio which opens tomorrow.

Man, 77, Regains Sight After Twelve Years

London.—After being blind for 12 years, James Donaldson, seventy-seven, suddenly recovered his sight. The first person he saw was his son, whom he did not recognize because he had grown bald. Twelve years ago, while Donaldson was out walking, everything "suddenly went black." His sight returned the other day just as suddenly and unaccountably as it had vanished.

NEW COMPANY INCORPORATED

A charter was granted to the First Ohio Investment company of Columbus, Friday by Secretary of Brown. The company will issue 25,000 shares on par and $1,000,000 preferred. One of the incorporators is Attorney Charles Gerhardt of this city.

SAFETY FIRST ORGANIZATION FOR MOTHERS

Children are Imitators and Should be Taught by Example More Than Precept.

Every mother should head a safety first organization in her home in Chicago.

This recommendation was made in an address at Chicago by Otto Y. Schnering, president of the Baby Ruth Candy company, and nationally "Parental supervision in every American home," Mr. Schnering said, "would reduce the number of fatalities and accidents to children to the minimum. Negligence on the part of some wives, mothers and servants often results in vessels of scalding water being left about which children may fall into or even grown-ups may stumble over.

"Pots full of hot coffee and teapots are often left close to the edge of tables where small children can pull them down upon themselves. Sometimes acids and poisons, unlabeled, are left where children can get them. Children are great imitators and should be taught safety more by example than precept. If they see the mother starting a fire by pouring oil from the oil can into the stove, they will be apt to try it. If oil must be used, it should be poured into a vessel.

"Children should learn in the home the dangers of playing in the streets and always to be on the lookout for traffic. Extreme care should be taken with electrical devices in the home. All connections should be inspected frequently and all wires properly insulated to safeguard against shocks which might result in injury or death.

"Mothers should have a set time for their children to go to bed so the little ones may acquire plenty of sleep. This is not only conducive to health but keeps the youngsters alert to dangers they face from automobiles while at play."

Farmer Does Good Turn, and then Picks Up $50

Detroit, Mich.—Garwood Lanzeman, a farmer living near Brown City, Mich., saw a horseshoe with protruding nails lying in the middle of the road. Thinking that he would save a motorist the misfortune of a puncture, Lanzeman got out of his car and waded through the mud of the road to salvage the shoe. As he was about to climb back into his car with the luck emblem he saw a pocketbook half buried in mud. The purse contained $50 in bills.

JOHN HICKMAN GEORGE VARGO ELECTROCUTED

One Killed Policeman Dan Garrett and the Other Murdered His Landlady.

The lifeless bodies of John Hickman, Chillicothe slayer of Dan Garrett, policeman and George Vargo, Lake county murderer of his landlady, Mrs. Anna Sabo, were reposing in a bleak morgue Saturday awaiting decision of their relatives as to burial.

The men Friday night were strapped in the electric chair in the new death house at Ohio penitentiary and their lives forfeited for their crimes.

Hickman, being the older inhabitant of death row was the first to be executed.

He came from the death house anti-room with a peaceful expression on his face and quietly taking his seat began a survey of the room.

As the electrodes were being fastened, he glanced about the death chamber, eyeing witnesses, looked up as if seeing a vision and smiled.

Just before the black mask was placed over his face he addressed prison Chaplain T. O. Reed, who had baptized him early Friday morning. "Good-bye, Chaplain," he said. "I hope I meet you in heaven, Chaplain." He said it hurriedly, but his voice did not waver.

The current was turned on at 9:02 and off at 9:03. Prison physician W. B. Merrill made three examinations over a period of five and a half minutes before he pronounced Hickman dead.

Vargo took his fate calmly, but with manifest unwillingness, in contrast to Hickman.

He said nothing. He died quickly. Both condemned men had chicken for their last meal.

SEPTIC POISON CAUSES DEATH MRS. RUDISILL

PLAN ADVANCE ON "SCIENTIFIC FRONT"

Smithsonian Explorers Have Ranged Many Lands.

Washington.—How science ranges the world in a quiet, ceaseless quest for material with which to build fuller conceptions of our universe is well illustrated by the Smithsonian Institution's exploration pamphlet for 1926, which is just off the press. The book might properly be called "The Adventure of Science." It describes briefly 35 excursions into the field—if trips to Sumatra, to China, to Algeria, Baluchistan and southwest Africa, to Alaska, may correctly be called excursions. Their purpose included, among others, the capture of live wild game, the unearthing of buried villages which flourished in prehistoric America, the collection of fossil footprints and fossil elephants and shells, the gathering of ferns in West Indian mountains, and of minerals in Mexico. The short impersonal narratives evoke the picture of men keenly expectant before the curtailed stage of nature. They bury forever the dead myth of the "dry-as-dust" character of science.

The introduction to the pamphlet reveals that "during the past year more expeditions in which the Smithsonian was represented have gone out than ever before, and this in spite of the fact that the institution has practically no unrestricted funds for field work."

Field Work Essential.

"Field work is essential to the advance of nearly all branches of science," continues the introduction, "particularly those which the Smithsonian institution is at present engaged in promoting, namely, geology, biology, anthropology and astrophysics. The institution, therefore, embraces every opportunity of putting expeditions in the field to obtain desired information or collections, either under its own auspices through financial assistance from its friends or in co-operation with other agencies which will benefit equally from the work."

The year's expeditions were headed by a 30,000-mile journey to Algeria, Baluchistan and southwest Africa, undertaken by Dr. C. G. Abbot, acting secretary of the Smithsonian, under the auspices of the National Geographic society and the Smithsonian, to select a site for a solar observatory in the eastern hemisphere. He picked Mount Brukkaros among the Hottentots of southwest Africa and the observatory is already functioning there. The purpose of the field work of the Smithsonian's astrophysical observatory, according to Doctor Abbot, has been aimed for the last eight years to solve the question of whether the sun varies, and, if so, what effects on our weather do the changes of solar heat produce?

Another section of Africa—Tanganyika territory—provided the scene for the Smithsonian-Chrysler live-game collecting expedition under Dr. William B. Mann. The expedition brought home about 1,700 live animals for the national zoological park under Smithsonian direction, including a pair of giraffes, five impalla, a greater kudu, an eland, a blue duiker, red duiker, three white-bearded kudu, four wart-hogs and quantities of birds, small mammals and reptiles.

The success of the expedition was made possible by the hearty co-operation of the game department of Tanganyika, and an all-inclusive license from the governor. This proved invaluable, because of the numerous native gamekeepers who were constantly dropping in on the camp, asking to see the license, taking its number and the names of the party and inquiring from the native hunters what the purpose of the expedition was. The license also enabled Doctor Mann to hire 90 porters of the Wam-boro and Wambugo tribes, who are so swift that they can run down animals.

Several attempts to capture young rhino failed, due to the absence of young. Adult rhinos charged the party five times, without inflicting serious damage. Doctor Mann refutes the theory that the tick birds warn their hosts of an approaching enemy. These birds cluster thickly on the rhinoceros to eat the ticks which are so abundant on his body. At the approach of any suspicious object the tick birds make a loud twittering, thereby indicating to men the whereabouts of the rhinoceros.

Queen Mary Has Stalls in Stables Tiled Green

London.—The royal stables at Buckingham palace have been renovated and, at Queen Mary's suggestion, every stall has been tiled in jade green. The feeding boxes are of wood, painted white, and the name of each horse is inscribed in black above the stall.

King George takes a great interest in his horses and the royal grooms have to keep them ready for his inspection at any moment. His majesty is a keen rider and often is seen in Rotten row, the horse track in Hyde park, at seven o'clock in the morning during the summer.

His majesty's favorite horse is Anzac. In the next stall to Anzac is Haig, the charger that carried Earl Haig throughout the great war.

USE OVERSIZE TIRES

For More Mileage—Slight Extra Expense Is Justified, Says Firestone Dealer.

"The use of oversize tires will enable many motorists to get much greater satisfaction and longer mileage than with regular tires," according to "Bones" Hammel, Firestone dealer in Circleville.

"Motor cars are equipped with tires that are ample for any ordinary use, provided they are inflated to the correct pressure. However, most motorists abuse their tires by overloading them and through failure to keep them 'pumped up.'"

"Oversizing allows a much greater margin of safety, and in the long run justifies the extra expense. There are many advantages to using oversize tires, including more comfortable riding, better braking with less tendency to skid, and less tire trouble. The larger tire is not so easily cut or bruised and the tread wears much longer.

"Last but not least, the oversize tire will average far greater mileage, which in terms of cost per mile, means economy. In tires as in everything else, it pays to buy dependable, quality merchandise and Firestones have a long established reputation for being the leader in that field."

STATE FAIR TRACK RECORD IS BROKEN

Peter Manning, speedy trotter, broke all records for the Ohio State Fair track in a workout Thursday and shattered the world's record for the month of June when he did a mile in two minutes, four and one-half seconds, according to Charles V. Thousands of Motorists Throng Roads To National Beauty Spots of West

The wide world beckons and the motorist is answering the vacation call. New roads, new conveniences and new services have made the whole United States almost as close as the wheel of one's car. Thousands and scores of thousands of motorists all over the land are responding to the travel lure. They are going from each place and in all directions.

New roads in the far West this year and improved old roads have made practically every national beauty spot pleasantly accessible and there is already an indication that the great national parks will make records for visitors this year never before approached. But no matter how many come the parks will not be crowded. To the man in the East, park mean a green spot in a city. To the Westerner it means a great preserve of natural beauty, in many instances containing thousands of square miles. And it is equipped to take care of visitors. The visitors may either camp or may stop at mountain lodges as fine as any.

Some of the points that are now included on a complete all summer motor trip to the Pacific Coast alternating as between North and South on the go and return journey are:

Glacier National Park, Yellowstone National Park, the Columbia River Highway, the Snoqualmie Falls and Pass, Rainier National Park, the Mount Hood Loop, Crater Lake National Park and then the famous series in California—Mount Shasta, the Mount Lassen Volcanic National Park showing the only active volcano in the United States, the Redwood Highway, Muir Woods, Yosemite National Park with its matchless waterfalls and rock formation, the Sequoia National Park with its General Sherman Tree, thirty-six and one-half feet

in diameter and with five thousand trees greater than ten feet in diameter in an area of two miles square, Los Angeles, Hollywood and Old Mexico. Then on the Sothern route, Zion National Park, Bryce Canyon, the Kaibab National Forest, the Petrified Forest, the Grand Canyon and the residences of the pre-historic cliff dwellers, and Indian pueblos where the native American still lives much as he did before Cortez came to the shores of North America.

If any of our readers wish to make a motor journey to the Pacific Coast that touches Southern California on either the going or return journey, by special arrangement, the Automobile Club of Southern California will act as their guide and servant without charge. Write or telegraph the club, mentioning this paper, at its headquarters, Twenty-sixth and Figueroa streets, Los Angeles. Say from what point you will start, give the time of start and the time you hope to be back home again. Mention the several important places on the route that you want to visit. The Club will then send you complete detail route maps, selecting the go and return routes so that the journey will be pleasant from a weather standpoint. Say whether you are going to camp out, camp in motor camps or stay in hotels. If specific information is wanted, make the request definitely in the communication. On arrival in Southern California the Automobile Club will make the visitor a guest member without charge. These courtesies are extended in return for the courtesies invariably shown to California motorists when traveling in the other parts of the United States. All of our readers intending the journey should avail themselves of the offer. It will make their journey decidedly more pleasant and workmanlike than if they pioneer.

Money In Farm Waste
Straw Once A Waste Product Is Now Being Utilized
The scientist who discovered that the highest known quality of insulating board can be manufactured from a waste by-product of the farm must have been a direct descendant of the inventor of the mousetrap that caused a well-beaten path to be worn in the wilderness where he made his abode. Mankind always pays tribute to genius, no matter in what form it may be expressed. The mousetrap served its purpose in inspiring a literary gem, improving the highways in a run-down neighborhood, and, probably, in snaring its quota of mice. The name of its maker escapes us for the moment.

The big idea is this. Merit always reaches the goal just ahead of the other fellow. Merit may not be the first to start, but it always lands the prize. As Punch so aptly expressed it, "true merit, like the pearl inside the oyster, is content to remain quiet until it finds an opening."

For years the men of science have been delving into the mysteries of Nature in an effort to learn her secrets. Some few they have discovered—mixtures, compounds and combinations of the elements that produce astounding results—the radio, telegraph, telephone, phonograph, electric light and other inventions that "puzzle the wif" and make us wonder where it will finally end. When will mankind attain the ultimate in knowledge of Nature's secrets?

When the scientist can convert a waste by-product, such as straw, into a "board that is impervious to moisture, heat, cold and sound, that is highly fire resistant, virtually indestructible and make it a commercial commodity of primary importance, at the same time giving the farmer a source of revenue that he hardly dared to dream of, the possibilities of laboratory research and its potential and actual influence on mankind are barely glimpsed by the layman.

We see only the result of the scientist's patient labor—the finished insulating building board of straw. The long hours that stretched into days and weeks and months and years escape us. We do not see him at his task of combining alien elements, compounding strange mixtures, discarding the proven unfit, testing and re-testing until finally his long research is rewarded—the one material that meets all the requirements of insulation in its highest form is revealed in the humble straw, a waste by-product of the wheat harvest.

Wheat has been grown since the dawn of creation. The earliest records of it are in the Bible. The valleys of Mesopotamia were upturned with oxen-drawn plows made of a forked stick. The grain was threshed by oxen trampling it. Then, as now, the straw was a useless by-product. Through all the years that followed since that remote period man has saved the wheat and discarded the straw, because he didn't know what to do with it. Thousands of years passed before he discovered that he had cast away untold millions of dollars worth of golden straw.

Burroughs, the naturalist, said "Nature is not only wasteful, but cruel." The waste of straw that stretches so far back through the centuries is about to be corrected through the advanced knowledge of man. Even now a great mill is building at St. Joseph, Mo., for the utilization of the strawy discard of the golden-hued wheatlands of the central west. This mill will be the most modern of its kind in the world. Where the straw goes in at one end and emerges continuous a board ½-inch thick, 12 feet wide—it is then cut in panels 4 feet wide any any desired length. Built at the gateway of the greatest wheat-growing section in the world, it will afford a ready market to the wheat growers of Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas for a by-product that formerly passed from its stage of existence in an aureole of flame, because that was the easiest and quickest way to get rid of it.

Maybe, in the course of time, corn stalks, weeds and other vegetation may find an outlet to the channels of trade and become a source of revenue to the owner of the land on which they were produced. Who knows?

Rush Order
John has implicit faith in his mother, but he stepped over the edge the other day. He is in high school and has just reached the age of quick decisions.

"Mother," he said, "can you devil me a dozen eggs, fix me ten sandwiches and bake me some beans in 45 minutes? I've got to have them quick?"

"Well, John," replied the smiling mother, "I've always jumped for you, but I can't do that. I can fix the eggs and sandwiches, but you'll have to get your beans elsewhere. There is a limit to what a mother can do."—Indianapolis News.

The Good Detective
Grant Crabtree, chief clerk of the New York police department, described at a dinner a brilliant piece of work on the part of a New York detective.

"Yes," Mr. Crabtree ended. "George found three hairs from the murderer's mustache, and the rest was easy. A little knowledge is a dangerous thing—if a detective like George gets hold of it."

Army Corps Insignia
The insignia of the quartermaster corps of the army is a sword and key crossed on a wheel surmounted by a spread eagle. The signification of the insignia is as follows: The wheel represents transportation; the key, store and supply keeper; the sword, military supplies, the eagle, the national emblem.

Looks like new; it isn't tho just had them cleaned at Barnhill's, very common remark. Call office 710.

New Ford Cars

In spite of the rumors of a new model Ford Car, 32, new Ford cars were delivered in Pickaway County during May. The buyer of a new automobile appreciates the value that only a Ford car offers. The sale of Ford cars during May is proof of the confidence the new car buyers have in Ford products---and our number of sales is proof of the confidence they have in this dealership.

When you consider buying a new car judge its merits in comparison with its price. The present model Ford cars are still available at the lowest price in automobile history.

FLAG DAY.

Tuesday is the birthday of the United States flag. It floats at the tops of buildings and is carried at the head of processions. You cheer it. You love it and day after day you promise allegiance to the ideals for which it stands.

Sometimes you think a bit about it and wonder what there is in a bit of bunting marked with stripes and stars in bright colors, to make a people feel that way about it.

The flag is a symbol—a sign. It stands for everything we of America hold dear—Ideals of liberty, justice, humanity and loving kindness that every American likes to think inspires his life.

We believe in justice, tempered with mercy. We believe in liberty of thought, of speech, of written word and self directed deeds, with a decent regard for the opinions of mankind.

We believe in freedom, but no act of ours is true to the standards of American breeding it is strikes at the right of another to be happy and at peace. This involves the right of national self determination.

These are the ideals you salute when you raise your hand in reverence to your flag. They are the plus of the flag that symbolizes four freedom. Make them your own on the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the American flag.

"Your Flag and my Flag!

And, oh, how much it holds—

Your land and my land—

Secure within its folds!

Your heart and my heart

Beat quicker at the sight;

Sun-kissed and wind-tossed,

Red and blue and white.

The one Flag—the great Flag—the

Flag for me and you—

Glorified all else beside—the red and

white and blue."

WHEN YOU AIN'T NO MORE

A FELLOW buys rubbers to put on his feet
 A hat he obtains for his dome;
 And in that direction
 Of needy protection
 He bulwarks the place he calls home.

Our fighters in khaki
 Wore helmets of steel,
 Our banks have alarms by the ton;
 For merely the reason
 That safety's in season
 A copper must carry a gun.

But think of your family's future,
 My friend,
 Get wise, use a little restraint:
 Despite your endurance,
 Your mite of insurance
 Is all that is left
 When you ain't.

Carrots Excellent Food

The saying "carrots will make you beautiful" is indirectly true because they are an excellent source of mineral matter used in regulating body processes and building tissues. They are especially rich in calcium and a good source of at least three vitamins.—Exchange.

BEFORE YOU START—PREPARE.

The time for your vacation trip will soon be here. Before you start be sure your Ford car is operating perfectly. Drive in and let us check the ignition system, tune up the motor and oil and grease the car—so you will be assured of reaching your destination without having those annoying delays along the road. A few dollars spent before you start is better than ten spent along the way—plus the delay.

Built to Order

India abounds with cities built to order, and nearly 1,600 years ago Constantine decreed that tiny Byzantium should become the capitol of Rome in the East. His courtiers laughed when he built the defensive walls of Constantinople 15 stadia west of the bounds of Byzantium, but many of them must have lived to see the area filled.

FOLKSBURG ITEMS

Folksburg was treated to a little excitement last night when the fire bell rang out all of a sudden about 9 o'clock and everybody that wasn't in bed was soon out to the streets making loud inquiries and trying to learn which way to start. But it proved disappointing for it wasn't anything only Henry Hunt burning rubbish back of his wood shed.

Jud Johnson has moved a hive of bees into the middle of the strawberry patch on his back lot. Which he thinks will maybe discourage the boys from getting in there when the berries begin to get ripe.

Luther Newton, who has been working for the telephone company, was sent out yesterday to see hif many poles it would take to run a new line along Mulberry street. He was supposed to step off the distance, but it being a hot day, he waited until somebody came along going that way, and counted how many steps they took.

Mrs. Amanda Bell had Tom Jackson build a new walk in her back yard last week. After he got thru he tried to be modest and said it wasn't a very good job and when Amanda agreed with him, why Tom didn't like it very well.

Joe Green, who runs one of our grocery stores, was talking the other day how he aims to be independent and say what he thinks in every instance. And while he was still on the subject, one of his best customers called on the phone to tell him he'd sent them the wrong kind of coffee, and Joe, knowing full well he sent was ordered, said it was his mistake and he'd make it right.

Enoch Budd, who recently subscribed for a daily paper at 60 cents a month, wishes now he hadn't started until next month on account of he happened to remember that June only has 30 days.

Miss Sadie Baxter took some of her friends down to he postoffice last night so they'd want to know what was in a letter she thought she'd get.
But she failed to stir their curiosity any for the letter wasn't there.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Cobb drove over into Polk county last Saturday to the place where Felix was raised. They enjoyed themselves real well looking around until they found a beech tree where Felix had et his initials a long time ago. And there were some other initials right under his, and when Felix looked at them a little dreamy like and seemed to be meditating deep, why Mrs. Cobb said "it was high time for them to be starting home.

Somebody was speaking in the barber shop recently that what makes good times is for everybody to keep their money in circulation. And Wesley Mills said he wouldn't mind to do his part of that if he thought he could hold his place in the circle.

Mrs. Ed Thomas has been talking to Ed that she knows she'll never be satisfied until they have a house as big and fine as the one Jay Butler's folks live in. And by a sort of coincidence, Mrs. Butler has become considerably discouraged with their place on account of she saw one over at Newport that's a lot bigger.

Frank Pertle put in a long distance telephone call to the city yesterday to talk over a business matter, and he was a little fretted when his wife stopped him before he thought he was thru. But she explained that he started to repeat himself, and what was the use to pay for extra time to say things twice.

Noah Walls suffered some painful scratches while he was taking his noon nap last Tuesday. He was sitting up comfortable on the edge of the porch, with one of his feet down on the ground for a brace, and while he was there like that, his cat came up and started to sharpen its claws on his leg.

Consolation

The late Arnold Daly, the brilliant actor, said one day to a New York dramatic critic:
"Who'd have believed, before the World war, that actresses would appear on the stage of New York, Paris and Berlin dressed in nothing but a

THRIFT TALK
SAVING MONEY
MOST HELPFUL

Character is Molded by Self
Denial of Things He Does
Not Absolutely Need.

S. W. Straus, president American Society for Thrift says:

A young man was earning $2,200 a year. Out of this he saved $100 a month. At the end of the first year he was asked for a statement regarding his experience in submitting to such rigid self discipline and why he was willing to make these sacrifices.

His letter in part was as follows:
"Saving money, for the young, unmarried man, in many cases molds his character by self-denial of things he does not need, improves his health by eliminating dissipation and encouraging regular hours of sleep, improves the quality of his work by putting him in a better physical position and lessening the number of distracting outside interests and influences."

He also explained that he was able to make such a large saving by keeping a budget. He did not feel that his habits implied stinginess or tightfistedness, but he realized that his success in life depended on his ability to save money now. He said he had observed that few successes in the business world were permanent unless the man had learned to save money, and that he did not believe he ever would amount to much if he did not learn first of all to master himself.

He displayed a deep appreciation of thrift values when he called attention to the fact that it was not alone the money he was saving would benefit him in after years, but that to a still greater degree benefits would ensue from the strength of character which he was attaining.

By practicing thrift and thus eliminating dissipation he was able to turn his spare time to good advent-age by reading the best books and otherwise fitting himself for the great work which it was his ambition to accomplish.

These are great, fundamental truths.

Those who today adhere to such practices will tomorrow be leaders of men—the administrators of the destinies of the nation.

Origin of Weather Vanes

Vanes on the top of steeples were anciently made in the form of a cock and put up in papal times to remind the clergy of watchfulness. According to Swedish belief, the crowing of the cock puts ghosts to flight.

AMUSEMENTS

A story of fighting love and a succession of rousing thrills were revealed at the Met theater last night, when "Arizona Bound," the first picture presenting Gary Cooper, Para-mount's new western star, opened an engagement. It proved interesting not only because of the production itself, but because it introduces a film hero who seems destined to achieve marked popularity in the western field.

Cooper impresses one as being an actor of exceptional personality, with a tall, splendid physique that accords perfectly with the prevalent idea of the typical cowboy.

The picture abounds in suspense and thrilling action, and its manner of unfolding reflects great credit on John Waters, Paramount's famous director of Zane Grey stories, and now assigned to insure the new star an auspicious start. The backgrounds are especially beautiful.

The story deals with the adventures of Cooper, but transformed as rather a ne'er-do-well, but transformed by his love for his sweetheart and the necessity of relieving himself from unjust suspicion. How his problems are finally solved, makes a strong, swiftly-moving story. Cooper is aided by an admirable supporting cast, headed by the beautiful "velvet eyed girl," Betty Jewel, and El Brendel, a comedian who is a positive riot of mirth.

Probably with the knowledge that a screen cowboy's equine companion is of the utmost importance, Cooper has provided himself with the most beautiful horse that his reviewer has even seen in motion pictures. His name, it appears, is Flash and he threatens to rival the popularity of Tony, Silver King and Rex.

Altogether, you will find "Arizona Bound" absorbingly interesting, and extremely worth your while.

Finds Fortune in Her Back Yard Fish Farm

Watts, Calif.—A 50-foot back yard is a gold fish "factory" for Mrs. Anna G. Gray, who once kept a few pets in one glass bowl and since her first experiment in breeding, has built up a market for 12,000 goldfish, 130-000 snails and 2,500 water lilies annually.

She has developed an infinite variety of fish strains. The results show fish of silver and gold tones, some striped with black, others spotted. Some are totally black with only the glints of the virginal gold tone.

The raising of snails was a by-product of her first hatchery.
The scum accumulated at the bottom of the tanks is used for their food, and the snails, in turn, sold to gardeners as scavengers.

150TH ANNI-VERSARY OF FLAG
IS JUNE 14

Flag Day—June 14—should be more of an occasion than usual, Governor Donahy points out in a proclamation Thursday, because it is Old Glory's sesquicentennial.

The governor's proclamation follows:

"One hundred and fifty years have elapsed since the Stars and Stripes were adopted by the Continental Congress as the emblem of the colonists fighting for the principles of freedom, democracy and justice. It is our duty to commemorate this occasion in a large and fitting way, thereby expressing our love and loyalty to the traditions, ideals and institutions for which the flag stands.

"The Stars and Stripes belong to the American people, regardless of social station, wealth, common fealty. The mansion may display its silken banner, the cottage its simple cotton flag, manifesting the same patriotism as well as the union of the wealthy and the humble, honoring and believing in the common standards.

"By virtue of the authority vested in me as governor of Ohio, I hereby proclaim Tuesday, June 14, 1927, as Flag Day, and hope the grand American emblem will be displayed on that day from every home and at every business and public place in Ohio."

Skim Milk Makes
Valuable CheeseFarmers Could Get Good
Money for Product Now
Given to Swine.

By converting it into cottage cheese, farmers could get from 15 to 30 cents a gallon for the skim milk ordinarily fed to the hogs, according to P. H. Tracy of the dairy manufactures division, college of agriculture, University of Illinois. A gallon of skim milk will make from 1¼ to 1½ pounds of cottage cheese, which usually sells for 12½ to 20 cents a pound, he pointed out. Cottage cheese is easy to make on the farm and takes only a limited amount of equipment.

"There are various methods of making cottage cheese. The following procedure probably would be most convenient for the farm. In one method, junket, a tablet containing rennet is used, whereas in the other method the curd is set through the natural process of souring. The rennet cheese is a little more desirable.

Must Be High Quality.

"The milk used must be of high quality. It should come from clean, healthy cows. Care should be taken to see that the milk utensils have been thoroughly washed and rinsed with scalding water. They should be rinsed again just before they are used. This applies to the separator as well as the pails, strainers and cans.

"Cool the separated milk to 75 degrees and place that to be made into cheese in a vessel such as a large double boiler. If junket is to be used, dissolve the tablet in a pint of cold water and then add to the milk, stirring well. One tablet contains enough rennet to set about 50 gallons of milk and the above solution should be used accordingly. The rest should be kept cold until used, as it deteriorates rapidly at room temperatures.

"Hold the milk at a temperature as near 75 degrees as possible for about 18 to 20 hours. When it is ready to cut there will be a slight amount of whey on top, the curd will be firm and will cut clean when a spoon is passed through it.

Heat Slowly.

"Gently break up the curd into small cubes and heat slowly with very gentle agitation. If no junket has been added heat to about 92 degrees in about 30 minutes and hold at that temperature until the curd is firm enough to split open when squeezed. It should not be heated so long that it is tough and rubbery. Usually from 5 to 15 minutes will be necessary to firm the curd.

"If junket has been used, heat the curd slower but to a higher temperature, going to about 110 degrees to 112 degrees in about 60 to 75 minutes' time. Hold the cheese at 110 degrees to 112 degrees until the curd is firmed.

"Drain the whey through cheese-cloth or strainer and wash curd twice with cold water in order to chill curd and remove excess acid. The wash water is removed each time the same as whey.

"As soon as the curd seems to have drained dry add salt at the rate of 2 ounces for each 10 pounds of curd, and package. A little cream will make the cheese more palatable. Glass jars or paraffined paper containers may be used to advantage for marketing the product.

"The finished product should be in the form of large mellow flakes and should not be soft or pasty or tough. Neither should it have a high acid flavor."

Ethics of Fertilizer

Industry Are Improved

The fertilizer industry has become firmly established among legitimate business institutions, according to E. B. Wells, soil specialist of the Kansas State Agricultural college. When commercial fertilizers were first introduced into Kansas, he explained, little attention was paid either to quality or grade. Flash titles, together with low price, largely determined the sale of the product.

Today manufacturers have found that if the business is to be legitimate it must be founded upon scientific reasoning and experimental evidence. The number of brands are being reduced and the quality of products are being improved. Few low grade mixtures are put upon the market today by reputable companies.

Agricultural Items

More and better maple sap comes from maple lots that are not grazed.

The waste is greater than the benefits if cattle are turned on pasture too early.

Newspapers are devoting twice as much space to agricultural news as they did five years ago.

New York ordinarily raises a surplus of dairy cattle, but last year 10,000 more dairy cows were shipped into the state than were shipped out.

In buying baby chicks, it is wise to buy them locally so you may have a chance to visit the farm and see the parent stock before placing an order.

Well-rotted barnyard manure is a good fertilizer for the garden. It should be applied at the rate of 20 tons to an acre and should be worked into the soil.

Hints of the Mode of Interest to All Women

Taffeta is emphasized as a medium for formal frocks.

Side bouffes and a cape back introduce fullness into an afternoon dress of black flat crepe and white satin.

A formal afternoon dress is of georgette combined with a darker tone of velvet in three tiers on the skirt.

A black satin frock is spangled with steel and trimmed with silver lace.

Very new and dressy are the small metal hats of gold or silver brocade which are draped just like the felt and velvet.

An interesting afternoon frock is made by combining plain and printed velvet. The jumper is treated with fine tucks, and the skirt is plaited at the front.

A black satin sweater is worn with a tailored dress of fancy velvet.

The smartest hats are draped in some form.

Sports and tailors make use of narrow flying panels, plaited sections and tucking. A sunburst plaited front section is featured in several sports skirts.

Fur collars and scarfs usually are of fox in beige, maroon and blue.

Linings always are in harmony, never contrast.

Large pearl buttons and bar pins accent darker dresses. (The pearl button is round, two linked together to fasten the blouse.)

Garniture of small flowers is used with fur scarfs and on fur collars—same color or tone as the ensemble.

For sports, plain pastel colors—the softer blues, blue and beige, beige. White, with sweater of white, woven with compose blue horizontal stripes. Pink—an emphatic pink, verging on rose.

For tailors, smart suits are developed in dark colors, navy predominating; also in beige.

Flowers and Feathers

Trim Parisian Chapeaux

Fickle Dame Fashion forsakes the mannish trend in millinery for feminine trimmings of feathers and flowers. Flowers, which have been entirely forsaken by the milliners, are again pronounced the last word in trimming. Feathers, also, are flying high.

Felt hats worn by fashionists returning from Paris use either large single flowers of velvet georgette or small clusters of flowers as trimmings of medium brims and turbans. Where the brim is narrow or medium the large chrysanthemum, two-toned rose or cluster of violets is placed at the side back with petals extending over the brim. Wider brims even use the underbrim flower trim. Small turbans have large petaled flowers at the side front or clusters of small flowers over the ears. Black felt shapes trimmed in white chrysanthemums or violets are popular. Navy blue felts trimmed in white are also favored since the vogue for navy is gaining in popularity daily.

Picture Frocks for Evening

Picture frocks for evening wear with slender bodices and full gathered skirts offer a flowing hem movement for slender persons. Often the skirts dip at the rear. Slender, sheathlike evening frocks are often adorned with numerous tiers of beaded fringe on the skirts, which give a slightly flared effect.

Cardigan Jacket Costumes

Three-piece cardigan jacket costumes are worn by the very youngest members of society. They are especially smart when made of knitted jersey with stripes in different colors or tinsel.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

At one of the most delightful of the many beautiful parties that have been given for the many June brides of this year, Miss Helen Bennett was complimented on Thursday at noon when Miss Ethyl Rife entertained with a luncheon in her honor at her home, corner of Court and Mill streets. Crimson ramblers, Dorothy Perkins and American Pillar roses decorated the home and were placed on the thirteen small tables where the luncheon was served. When the scores were counted prizes were awarded Miss Alicia Rooney and Mrs. J. J. MacKinnon. Those present from out-of-town were, Miss Agnes Sullivan, Akron; Mrs. J. J. MacKinnon, Mrs. Samuel Moffitt, Misses Nell and Alicia Rooney, Columbus; Mrs. Paul Cromley, Ashville; Mrs. Paul McGinnis, Kingston and Miss Mary Radcliffe, Williamsport.

Beautiful Old City

Long Noted Seaport

Probably the most ancient of all seaports is Joppa, on the Mediterranean coast, the nearest harbor to Jerusalem, and for centuries Palestine's most important commercial trading port of entry. The name means "The Beautiful," and its situation well entitles it to be so called. It is built on a lofty rocky knoll on the edge of the sea, its fortifications facing seaward, with an encircling wall within which its buildings are crowded tier above tier on hewn out terraces. Surrounding it are the luxuriant plains of the Shephelah or low country, where are the groves producing the famous Jaffa oranges, the most luscious and costly the world has yet known, the olive trees which have always furnished much of its trade, fig trees and date palms, as well as the great wheat fields of the country.

How New York Will Look in 1977

A vivid forecast of how New York will look 50 years from now was pictured by Harvey Wiley Corbett, architect, speaking at the Exposition of Art in Trade held recently at R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., New York City. A city of gigantic towers, with pedestrian traffic separated on elevated highways from vehicular traffic moving in canals below, was predicted by Mr. Corbett. "New York will be a modern Venice, with motors instead of water, filling the canals," he said. "The big stores will have two entrances, one below for automobiles and one on the second story level for pedestrians. Shoppers will be able to walk about from store to store undisturbed by traffic. The open park plazas will be lifted to a level with the pedestrian lanes, and the space below will be used for parking motors. "The 'step-back' skyscrapers of the future will have moving stairs on the outside of the building, instead of elevators, with facilities for passengers to alight at any floor. There will be aeroplane landings everywhere. Artificial light, now in its infancy, will revolutionize our life, turning night completely into day. The city's business hours will be 24, instead of eight or ten; people will work in six hour shifts. We shall get our food probably by radio, with convenient radio food broadcasting stations at every corner. The churches of the future will be located atop of the great commercial buildings, commanding attention, instead of being buried in nondescript buildings below."

Some Fish Geography

AFTER Nicholas Appert's invention of canning saved sailors from the scourge of scurvy by providing them with garden foods and fresh meats, the sea returned the compliment by sending deep-sea dainties to people who live far inland. Today there are thirty-five varieties of fish products canned, and the housewife finds at least as many more ways of using them.

People of every race live in the United States, and they have brought their liking for their native foods with them. Consequently we have "finnan haddie," French Caviar, sardines, and anchovies from the Mediterranean chiefly as appetizers in various recipes for hors d'oeuvres. But much of the fish labelled "imported" comes from under the jurisdiction of Canada, with which country the United States has a friendly agreement about fisheries. Canned haddock, cod, herring, mackerel, sardines, shad, and shell fish are largely east coast industries; salmon and tuna fish are canned chiefly on the west coast.

In all fish lore the sardine has the most curious history. Guglio Trentino, an Italian, began preserving pilchard minnows on the island of Sardinia about 1850. He called them "sardines." France, Spain and Italy began to put up these minnows too, and small sprats as well. In Norway they can mussels and sild fish and call them sardines. In Maine and in Japan the fish used are small herring; in California, a species of pilchard, and in other countries various kinds of small fish. It will be seen that there is no such fish as a sardine. As a matter of fact the kind of fish canned as sardines does not matter much; the quality depends on the way they are canned. The little fish are so delicate that they must be handled with great care. The general procedure is to behead, clean and wash them, fry them in deep fat, drain, pack them carefully in flat tins, and fill the tins with olive oil.

Oysters, so often the housewife's standby for a cocktail, soup, or scallop, are put up chiefly in Maryland, down the Atlantic coast to Florida and around the Gulf of Mexico. Along the north Atlantic coast they were once abundant, but now must be artificially cultivated, and fresh oysters bring such good prices in eastern cities that it does not pay to can them.

Who has not tasted, and asked for clam chowder? Three kinds of clams are packed, the hard and soft clams of the Atlantic coast, and a Pacific coast species, the razor clam.

Shrimps, crabs, and lobsters make the foundation for some of the inland housewife's most attractive and nutritious salads. Shrimps are canned chiefly in States bordering on the Gulf of Mexico where they are abundant. Only the tail is eaten. Canned crabs come mostly from the Norfolk and Virginia coast and from Japan where crabs are plentiful and the people work for small wages to can them. Lobsters are caught in traps or pots along the North Atlantic coast, and brought alive to the cannery, boiled for about thirty minutes, and their meat taken from the shell in as large pieces as possible.

Only a beginning has been made along the sea coasts of America in preparing and canning anchovies, although these beautiful, small fish, blue-brown and silvery white, are abundant along our coasts. The Mediterranean is famous for anchovies, the industry of picking and spicing them being mainly carried on near its shores. Anchovies are an ancient appetizer. They were a favorite at Roman banquets in early times.

Caviar, the famous Russian tidbit, recently become familiar in American stores and markets, was originally made from roe of sturgeon, but now excellent caviar, made from the roe of salmon, codfish, herring, or white fish, can be bought at lower prices.

The tuna is a splendid game of the mackerel species which was not used for canning until 1903. In that year A. P. Halliwell, a sardine canner, near San Pedro, faced financial ruin because of the failure of the sardine run. So he turned to tuna fish, finding a means of preserving them by a special steam process. Canned with fine salad oil, the tuna attained so great a popularity that it now stands third in the value of all our tinned sea foods. Its flesh resembles chicken. It is often called "chicken of the sea" and is served many times in place of meat. Creamed on toast, or in salads it always finds enthusiastic favor.

Salmon is a story by itself. Most of the world's salmon is put up near the mouths of four of the longest salmon rivers: the Yukon, the Columbia, the Fraser, and the Copper. Canned salmon is used baked, in soup, cold in salads and sandwiches, fried in hors d'oeuvres, and in many other ways. Like some other sea fish, it contains iodine, so necessary to the inland dweller, and in food value as well as popularity ranks first among sea foods.

It would be hard to find a housewife who does not keep at least a few cans of the food on her shelves,

AGAIN

THIS SUMMER?

HAVEN'T you often said, "This summer I'll have a Hoover"?

Will you say it again this summer, or will you have it?

Never has the Hoover offered you so much relief from cleaning burdens, so much convenience, so much ease, so much extra-shortness in cleaning. The Greater Hoover, with its "Positive Agitation," removes in ordinary cleaning time 131% more dirt than even the best of previous Hoovers.

It is particularly easy for you to have a Hoover. You can pay only $6.25 down and a few small monthly amounts. If you have an old cleaner of any kind, we make a liberal allowance for it. Don't wait—telephone today for a demonstration.

You can also get "Positive Agitation" in a new popular-priced Hoover model. Ask us about it.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Friday noon at the Chillicothe County club Miss Anne Harmount, of Chillicothe, entertained with a bridge luncheon honoring Miss Helen Bennett, of this city, who will be married June 23 to Mr. Foster Weldon, of Chicago, Illinois. Mrs. Harry W. Heffner, Mrs. J. P. Noecker and Miss Miriam Ruggles were among the guests.

About sixty members and friends of the Presbyterian Missionary society gathered at the manse for their June meeting. Thru the kindness of many friends the manse was profusely decorated with the beautiful June flowers. After a brief business meeting, presided over by Mrs. Clark Hunsicker, the speaker of the day, Mrs. Frank Throop, of Columbus, was introduced. Mrs. Throop was for many years a missionary in China, and her talk abounded in delightful personal reminiscences. Her photographs of Chinese Christian Bible women, of a Chinese Christian band, of doctors and nurses and of a little boy who was saved from death thru Mrs. Throop's care, added greatly to the interest of her talk.

During the social hour, which followed Miss Katherine May and Miss Helen Steele sang a pleasing duet, "Summer Voices" and Mrs. Joseph Wilder with Mrs. Toensmeier played the overture from "Worms," which was received with appreciation.

Delightful refreshments were served by the hostesses; Mrs. Toensmeier, Mrs. Sarah Crow, Mrs. J. O. Eagle, Miss Grand-Girard, Mrs. Charles Smith and Mrs. D. V. Courtright.

The Rev. Howard E. Sheely, pastor of the Stoutsville charge of the Reformed church, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Sheeley, York, Pennsylvania, and Miss Louise Crites, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Crites, of Stoutsville, were married Wednesday morning, June 8, at 10:30 o'clock in the Heidelberg Reformed church, Stoutsville. A ceremony unpretentious enough to make it simple in its beauty was conducted by the Rev. Arthur Lemming, Lima, Ohio. The officiating clergyman was a classmate of the Rev. Mr. Sheely during his college and seminary training.

The decorative scheme in the church was pink and white. The auditorium of the Heidelberg church was crowded to its capacity with relatives and friends of the principals in the ceremony. The bride was beautifully attired in a gown of white satin and wore a veil trimmed with orange blossoms and pearls. She entered the church on the arm of her father. Mrs. Sheely had for her maid of honor, Miss Melba White, of Athens, Ohio, with whom she was associated while a student at Ohio university. Miss White wore a pink satin crepe rowa gown and wore a leghorn picture hat. The bride carried a bouquet of white rose buds while her maid of honor's flowers were pink roses. The bride was also attended by her sister, little Rosemary Crites as a bridesmaid. She wore a frock of white crepe de-chine with hat to match and carried a basket filled with pink roses. Charles Sheely, a brother of the bridegroom, also formed a portion of the procession as ring bearer. The ring was carried in a large pink rose by Master Sheely. The Rev. Mr. Sheely had for his best man Forry W. Stauffer, of York, Pennsylvania, a former classmate of his while in college. Miss Edna Sheely, of York, a sister of the bridegroom, presided at the piano and played "Andante Religioso," by Thomas, as the processional. During the ceremony she rendered Salut D'Amour, by Elgar and for the recessional Mendelssohn's wedding march. The Rev. Mr. Sheely, present pastor of the Stoutsville charge of the Reformed church, is a graduate of the York, Pennsylvania, high school being a member of the class of 1919. The following year he entered Ursinus college, Collegeville, Pennsylvania, from which institution of learning he was graduated in 1923. He then planned a three year course of study in the Central Theological seminary, Dayton, Ohio. From that time forth he has been part of the Stoutsville charge. Mrs. Sheely received her preparatory school training in the Stoutsville high school having been graduated from that institution in 1920. She then took a course in Ohio university, Athens and Heidelberg university, Tiffin, Ohio. She graduated from the latter school with the class of 1924.

Immediately following the wedding ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Stout. Rev. and Mrs. Sheely left on an extended motor trip thru the east. They expect to be at home about July 1, at the Reformed church parsonage in Stoutsville, O.

JACKSON TOWNSHIP

CLOTHING CLUB.

The third meeting of the Jackson township Clothing club was held at the schoolhouse June 1. Eighteen members were present. The roll call was answered by the question "Do You read 'True Stories'?"

At this meeting the first year girls drafted their apron patterns and those that had the material there started on them. The second year girls learned how to "hem patch." The third year girls examined the "overhand patch" and looked over patterns for their dresses.

Our leader asked the second and third year girls questions about last year's work which I am sure helped the girls a lot.

Demonstrations were given by Dorothy Petty, Melva Phillips and Bessie Clark.

The next meeting will be held at the school house June 15, at 10 a. m.

Last year's honor girls were entertained to a fishing party given by our leader, Miss Mary Shortridge. A fine time was enjoyed by all.

STILL HAVE FAITH IN ODD "MEDICINE"

Faith in a bottle of medicine for all real and imaginary ailments is a characteristic of the English working classes. In insurance practice, in which the check of expense does not act and the physicians are complacent, this leads to much wasteful expenditure on drugs. In London the insured numbered 1,890,786, July 8, last year, and for these 7,408,518 prescriptions were issued in the course of a year—an average of more than four apiece for the whole number and a much higher figure (not given) for those who were ill or thought themselves so ill as to consult a panel physician. The cost of the drugs was more than $5,000,000. One defense of this extensive drugging is that the bottle of medicine has a psychologic effect on the insured person which makes him feel better. After this, should the poor savage be despised for his faith in incantations and charms? —American Medical Journal.

Parentheses

We have it on the word of Mussolini that "women are the agreeable or pleasant parentheses of life." We who had always been told they were question marks are glad that's settled now. . . . Speaking of the current styles you could call some of the fair ones exclamation points and not be far wrong. . . . Of course since the Charleston has seized the land more women stand on foundations like () (than like O). . . . At that, it is a woman's influence that changed many a male O into a I. . . . And in some households the lady is not only the parenthesis but the whole sentence.—Detroit News.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Gallipolis—A herd of cattle, numbering 150, stampeded into the Ohio river while being ferried and attempted to swim across yesterday. Fourteen drowned. Swimming cattle were recovered as far as seven miles down stream.

Columbus — Revenue received by the state show an increase of $3,000,000 during the next two years as result of the passage of the Aigler corporation franchise tax by the recent legislature, State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy predicted today. The new act is in effect now and the taxes are due by July 15.

Cincinnati—George S. Stearns, 35, former Cincinnati, committed suicide early yesterday at his home on the fashionable Bayshore drive, Miami, Florida, according to a dispatch received.

Canton—With Louis E. Mazer, first man arrested for the murder of Don R. Mellett, under sentence of 5 to 20 years in the state penitentiary, County Prosecutor Henry W. Harter Jr., moved today to gather new evidence against Seranus A. Lengel, former Canton police chief, the last to be indicted.

Canton — C. C. Curtis, former mayor removed from office by Governor A. V. Donahey, is among four Republicans who have filed petitions for nomination as mayor in the August primary.

Canton — Followers of Grant and Sherman, men who tramped with Sherman to the sea, tottering veterans of a hundred engagements of the Civil war, began gathering today for the 61st annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic of Ohio which opens tomorrow.

SAFETY FIRST ORGANIZATION FOR MOTHERS

Children are Imitators and Should be Taught by Example More Than Precept.

Every mother should head a safety first organization in her home in Chicago.

This recommendation was made in an address at Chicago by Otto Y. Schnering, president of the Baby Ruth Candy company, and nationally "Parental supervision in every American home," Mr. Schnering said, "would reduce the number of fatalities and accidents to children to the minimum. Negligence on the part of some wives, mothers and servants often results in vessels of scalding water being left about which children may fall into or even grown-ups may stumble over.

"Pots full of hot coffee and teapots are often left close to the edge of tables where small children can pull them down upon themselves. Sometimes acids and poisons, unlabeled, are left where children can get them. Children are great imitators and should be taught safety more by example than precept. If they see the mother starting a fire by pouring oil from the oil can into the stove, they will be apt to try it. If oil must be used, it should be poured into a vessel.

"Children should learn in the home the dangers of playing in the streets and always to be on the lookout for traffic. Extreme care should be taken with electrical devices in the home. All connections should be inspected frequently and all wires properly insulated to safeguard against shocks which might result in injury or death.

"Mothers should have a set time for their children to go to bed so the little ones may acquire plenty of sleep. This is not only conducive to health but keeps the youngsters alert to dangers they face from automobiles while at play."

JOHN HICKMAN GEORGE VARGO ELECTROCUTED

One Killed Policeman Dan Garrett and the Other Murdered His Landlady.

The lifeless bodies of John Hickman, Chillicothe slayer of Dan Garrett, policeman and George Vargo, Lake county murderer of his landlady, Mrs. Anna Sabo, were reposing in a bleak morgue Saturday awaiting decision of their relatives as to burial.

The men Friday night were strapped in the electric chair in the new death house at Ohio penitentiary and their lives forfeited for their crimes. Hickman, being the older inhabitant of death row was the first to be executed.

He came from the death house anti-room with a peaceful expression on his face and quietly taking his seat began a survey of the room.

As the electrodes were being fastened, he glanced about the death chamber, eyeing witnesses, looked up as if seeing a vision and smiled.

Just before the black mask was placed over his face he addressed prison Chaplain T. O. Reed, who had baptized him early Friday morning. "Good-bye, Chaplain," he said. "I hope I meet you in heaven, Chaplain." He said it hurriedly, but his voice did not waver.

The current was turned on at 9:02 and off at 9:03. Prison physician W. B. Merrill made three examinations over a period of five and a half minutes before he pronounced Hickman dead.

Vargo took his fate calmly, but with manifest unwillingness, in contrast to Hickman.

He said nothing. He died quickly. Both condemned men had chicken for their last meal.

SEPTIC POISON CAUSES DEATH MRS. RUDISILL

Passed Away Saturday Morning--Funeral Services Monday Afternoon.

Mrs. Florence Lillie Rudisill died at her home, 489 East Franklin street, Saturday morning at 7:10 o'clock. She had been ill four weeks and her death was due to septic carditis. Mrs. Rudisill was born in Pickaway county, June 19, 1875, and was a daughter of Edson and Sarah Young List. She was married to Sherman Rudisill January 18, 1894, and was a member of the Church of Christ in Christian Union. Besides her husband one son and three daughters survive. They are Mrs. Myrtle E. Dresbach, Mrs. Georgia A. Ferish, Leroy Rudisill and Martha Lucille Rudisill.

Of her immediate family two brothers and two sisters are living. They are Jacob L. Leist, of Pickaway township; Edison C. Leist of this city; Mrs. Boyd Thompson of Columbus, and Mrs. Charles Martin, of Washington township.

The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Church of Christ in Christian Union. Rev. O. L. Ferguson will officiate. Interment in Hitler-Ludwig cemetery. The pallbearers will be Charles Martin, Boyd Thompson, Jacob Leist, Edson C. Leist, Roy Alredge and William Truax.

PLAN ADVANCE ON "SCIENTIFIC FRONT"

Smithsonian Explorers Have Ranged Many Lands.

Washington.—How science ranges the world in a quiet, ceaseless quest for material with which to build fuller conceptions of our universe is well illustrated by the Smithsonian Institution's exploration pamphlet for 1926, which is just off the press. The book might properly be called "The Adventure of Science." It describes briefly 35 excursions into the field—if trips to Sumatra, to China, to Algeria, Baluchistan and southwest Africa, to Alaska, may correctly be called excursions. Their purpose included, among others, the capture of live wild game, the unearthing of buried villages which flourished in prehistoric America, the collection of fossil footprints and fossil elephants and shells, the gathering of ferns in West Indian mountains, and of minerals in Mexico. The short impersonal narratives evoke the picture of men keenly expectant before the curtained stage of nature. They bury forever the dead myth of the "dry-as-dust" character of science.

The introduction to the pamphlet reveals that "during the past year more expeditions in which the Smithsonian was represented have gone out than ever before, and this in spite of the fact that the institution has practically no unrestricted funds for field work."

Field Work Essential.

"Field work is essential to the advance of nearly all branches of science," continues the introduction, "particularly those which the Smithsonian institution is at present engaged in promoting, namely, geology, biology, anthropology and astrophysics. The institution, therefore, embraces every opportunity of putting expeditions in the field to obtain desired information or collections, either under its own auspices through financial assistance from its friends or in co-operation with other agencies which will benefit equally from the work."

The year's expeditions were headed by a 30,000-mile journey to Algeria, Baluchistan and southwest Africa, undertaken by Dr. C. G. Abbot, acting secretary of the Smithsonian, under the auspices of the National Geographic society and the Smithsonian, to select a site for a solar observatory in the eastern hemisphere. He picked Mount Brukkaros among the Hottentots of southwest Africa and the observatory is already functioning there. The purpose of the field work of the Smithsonian's astrophysical observatory, according to Doctor Abbot, has been aimed for the last eight years to solve the question of whether the sun varies, and, if so, what effects on our weather do the changes of solar heat produce?

Another section of Africa—Tanganyika territory—provided the scene for the Smithsonian-Chrysler live-game collecting expedition under Dr. William B. Mann. The expedition brought home about 1,700 live animals for the national zoological park under Smithsonian direction, including a pair of giraffes, five impalla, a greater kudu, an eland, a blue duiker, red duiker, three white-bearded kru, four wart-hogs and quantities of birds, small mammals and reptiles.

The success of the expedition was made possible by the hearty co-operation of the game department of Tanganyika, and an all-inclusive license from the governor. This proved invaluable, because of the numerous native gamekeepers who were constantly dropping in on the camp, asking to see the license, taking its number and the names of the party and inquiring from the native hunters what the purpose of the expedition was. The license also enabled Doctor Mann to hire 90 porters of the Wamboro and Wambugo tribes, who are so swift that they can run down animals.

Several attempts to capture young rhino failed, due to the absence of young. Adult rhinos charged the party five times, without inflicting serious damage. Doctor Mann refutes the theory that the tick birds warn their hosts of an approaching enemy. These birds cluster thickly on the rhinoceros to eat the ticks which are so abundant on his body. At the approach of any suspicious object the tick birds make a loud twittering, thereby indicating to men the whereabouts of the rhinoceros.

Queen Mary Has Stalls in Stables Tiled Green

London.—The royal stables at Buckingham palace have been renovated and, at Queen Mary's suggestion, every stall has been tiled in jade green. The feeding boxes are of wood, painted white, and the name of each horse is inscribed in black above the stall.

King George takes a great interest in his horses and the royal grooms have to keep them ready for his inspection at any moment. His majesty is a keen rider and often is seen in Rotten row, the horse track in Hyde park, at seven o'clock in the morning during the summer.

His majesty's favorite horse is Anzac. In the next stall to Anzac is Haig, the charger that carried Earl Haig throughout the great war.

USE OVERSIZE TIRES

For More Mileage—Slight Extra
Expense Is Justified, Says
Firestone Dealer.

"The use of oversize tires will enable many motorists to get much greater satisfaction and longer mileage than with regular tires," according to "Bones" Hammel, Firestone dealer in Circleville.

"Motor cars are equipped with tires that are ample for any ordinary use, provided they are inflated to the correct pressure. However, most motorists abuse their tires by overloading them and through failure to keep them 'pumped up.'

greater margin of safety, and in the long run justifies the extra expense. There are many advantages to using oversize tires, including more comfortable riding, better braking with less tendency to skid, and less tire trouble. The larger tire is not so easily cut or bruised and the tread wears much longer.

"Last but not least, the oversize tire will average far greater mileage, which in terms of cost per mile, means economy. In tires as in everything else, it pays to buy dependable, quality merchandise and Firestones have a long established reputation for being the leader in that field."

STATE FAIR TRACK RECORD IS BROKEN

Peter Manning, speedy trotter, broke all records for the Ohio State Fair track in a workout Thursday and shattered the world's record for the month of June when he did a mile in two minutes, four and one-half seconds, according to Charles V. Truax, state director of agriculture. He did the last half in one minute flat. Peter Manning was running against Bumble Bee, thoroughbred mare.

Thousands of Motorists Throng Roads To National Beauty Spots of West

The wide world beckons and the motorist is answering the vacation call. New roads, new conveniences and new services have made the whole United States almost as close as the wheel of one's car. Thousands and scores of thousands of motorists all over the land are responding to the travel lure. They are going from each place and in all directions.

New roads in the far West this year and improved old roads have made practically every national beauty spot pleasantly accessible and there is already an indication that the great national parks will make records for visitors this year never before approached. But no matter how many come the parks will not be crowded. To the man in the East, park mean a green spot in a city. To the Westerner it means a great preserve of natural beauty, in many instances containing thousands of square miles. And it is equipped to take care of visitors. The visitors may either camp or may stop at mountain lodges as fine as any.

Some of the points that are now included on a complete all summer motor trip to the Pacific Coast alternating as between North and South on the go and return journey are:

Glacier National Park, Yellowstone National Park, the Columbia River Highway, the Snoqualmie Falls and Pass, Rainier National Park, the Mount Hood Loop, Crater Lake National Park and then the famous series in California—Mount Shasta, the Mount Lassen Volcanic National Park showing the only active volcano in the United States, the Redwood Highway, Muir Woods, Yosemite National Park with its matchless waterfalls and rock formation, the Sequoia National Park with its General Sherman Tree, thirty-six and one-half feet

in diameter and with five thousand trees greater than ten feet in diameter in an area of two miles square, Los Angeles, Hollywood and Old Mexico. Then on the Southern route, Zion National Park, Bryce Canyon, the Kaibab National Forest, the Petrified Forest, the Grand Canyon and the residences of the pre-historic cliff dwellers, and Indian pueblos where the native American still lives much as he did before Cortez came to the shores of North America.

If any of our readers wish to make a motor journey to the Pacific Coast that touches Southern California on either the going or return journey, by special arrangement, the Automobile Club of Southern California will act as their guide and servant without charge. Write or telegraph the club, mentioning this paper, at its headquarters, Twenty-sixth and Figueroa streets, Los Angeles. Say from what point you will start, give the time of start and the time you hope to be back home again. Mention the several important places on the route that you want to visit. The Club will then send you complete detail route maps, selecting the go and return routes so that the journey will be pleasantest from a weather standpoint. Say whether you are going to camp out, camp in motor camps or stay in hotels. If specific information is wanted, make the request definitely in the communication. On arrival in Southern California the Automobile Club will make the visitor a guest member without charge. These courtesies are extended in return for the courtesies invariably shown to California motorists when traveling in the other parts of the United States. All of our readers intending the journey should avail themselves of the offer. It will make their journey decidedly more pleasant and workmanlike than if they pioneer.

Money In Farm Waste

Straw Once A Waste Product Is Now Being Utilized

The scientist who discovered that the highest known quality of insulating board can be manufactured from a waste by-product of the farm must have been a direct descendant of the inventor of the mousetrap that caused a well-beaten path to be worn in the wilderness where he made his abode. Mankind always pays tribute to genius, no matter in what form it may be expressed. The mousetrap served its purpose in inspiring a literary gem, improving the highways in a run-down neighborhood, and, probably, in snaring its quota of mice. The name of its maker escapes us for the moment.

The big idea is this. Merit always reaches the goal just ahead of the other fellow. Merit may not be the first to start, but it always lands the prize. As Punch so aptly expressed it, "true merit, like the pearl inside the oyster, is content to remain quiet until it finds an opening."

For years the men of science have been delving into the mysteries of Nature in an effort to learn her secrets. Some few they have discovered—mixtures, compounds and combinations of the elements that produce astounding results—the radio, telegraph, telephone, phonograph, electric light and other inventions that "puzzle the will" and make us wonder where it will finally end. When will mankind attain the ultimate in knowledge of Nature's secrets?

When the scientist can convert a waste by-product, such as straw, into a "board" that is impervious to moisture, heat, cold and sound, that is highly fire resistant, virtually indestructible and make it a commercial commodity of primary importance, at the same time giving the farmer a source of revenue that he hardly dared to dream of, the possibilities of laboratory research and its potential and actual influence on mankind are barely glimpsed by the layman.

We see only the result of the scientist's patient labor—the finished insulating building board of straw. The long hours that stretched into days and weeks and months and years escape us. We do not see him at his task of combining alien elements, compounding strange mixtures, discarding the proven unfit, testing and re-testing until finally his long research is rewarded—the one material that meets all the requirements of insulation in its highest form is revealed in the humble straw, a waste by-product of the wheat harvest.

Wheat has been grown since the dawn of creation. The earliest records of it are in the Bible. The valleys of Mesopotamia were upturned with oxen-drawn plows made of a forked stick. The grain was threshed by oxen trampling it. Then, as now, the straw was a useless by-product. Through all the years that followed since that remote period man has saved the wheat and discarded the straw, because he didn't know what to do with it. Thousands of years passed before he discovered that he had cast away untold millions of dollars worth of golden straw.

Burroughs, the naturalist, said "Nature is not only wasteful, but cruel." The waste of straw that stretches so far back through the centuries is about to be corrected through the advanced knowledge of man. Even now a great mill is building at St. Joseph, Mo., for the utilization of the straw discard of the golden-hued wheatlands of the central west. This mill will be the most modern of its kind in the world. Where the straw goes in at one end and emerges continuous a board ½-inch thick, 12 feet wide—it is then cut in panels 4 feet wide any any desired length. Built at the gateway of the greatest wheat-growing section in the world, it will afford a ready market to the wheat growers of Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas for a by-product that formerly passed from its stage of existence in an aureole of flame, because that was the easiest and quickest way to get rid of it.

Maybe, in the course of time, corn stalks, weeds and other vegetation may find an outlet to the channels of trade and become a source of revenue to the owner of the land on which they were produced. Who knows?

Rush Order

John has implicit faith in his mother, but he stepped over the edge the other day. He is in high school and has just reached the age of quick decisions.

"Mother," he said, "can you devil me a dozen eggs, fix me ten sandwiches and bake me some beans in 45 minutes? I've got to have them quick?"

"Well, John," replied the smiling mother, "I've always jumped for you, but I can't do that. I can fix the eggs and sandwiches, but you'll have to get your beans elsewhere. There is a limit to what a mother can do."—Indianapolis News.

The Good Detective

Grant Crabtree, chief clerk of the New York police department, described at a dinner a brilliant piece of work on the part of a New York detective.

"Yes," Mr. Crabtree ended. "George found three hairs from the murderer's mustache, and the rest was easy. A little knowledge is a dangerous thing—if a detective like George gets hold of it."

Army Corps Insignia

The insignia of the quartermaster corps of the army is a sword and key crossed on a wheel surmounted by a spread eagle. The significance of the insignia is as follows: The wheel represents transportation; the key, store and supply keeper; the sword, military supplies, the eagle, the national emblem.

FLAG DAY.

Tuesday is the birthday of the United States flag. It floats at the tops of buildings and is carried at the head of processions. You cheer it. You love it and day after day you promise allegiance to the ideals for which it stands.

Sometimes you think a bit about it and wonder what there is in a bit of bunting marked with stripes and stars in bright colors, to make a people feel that way about it.

The flag is a symbol—a sign. It stands for everything we of America hold dear—Ideals of liberty, justice, humanity and loving kindness that every American likes to think inspires his life.

We believe in justice, tempered with mercy. We believe in liberty of thought, of speech, of written word and self directed deeds, with a decent regard for the opinions of mankind.

We believe in freedom, but no act of ours is true to the standards of American breeding it is strikes at the right of another to be happy and at peace. This involves the right of national self determination.

These are the ideals you salute when you raise your hand in reverence to your flag. They are the plus of the flag that symbolizes four freedom. Make them your own on the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the American flag.

"Your Flag and my Flag!
And, oh, how much it holds—
Your land and my land—
Secure within its folds!
Your heart and my heart
Beat quicker at the sight;
Sun-kissed and wind-tossed,
Red and blue and white.
The one Flag—the great Flag—the
Flag for me and you—
Glorified all else beside—the red and
white and blue."

Built to Order

India abounds with cities built to order, and nearly 1,000 years ago Constantine decreed that tiny Byzantium should become the capitol of Rome in the East. His courtiers laughed when he built the defensive walls of Constantinople 15 stadia west of the bounds of Byzantium, but many of them must have lived to see the area filled.

FOLKSBURG ITEMS

Folksburg was treated to a little excitement last night when the fire bell rang out all of a sudden about 9 o'clock and everybody that wasn't in bed was soon out to the streets making loud inquiries and trying to learn which way to start. But it proved disappointing for it wasn't anything only Henry Hunt burning rubbish back of his wood shed.

Jud Johnson has moved a hive of bees into the middle of the strawberry patch on his back lot. Which he thinks will maybe discourage the boys from getting in there when the berries begin to get ripe.

Luther Newton, who has been working for the telephone company, was sent out yesterday to see how many poles it would take to run a new line along Mulberry street. He was supposed to step off the distance, but it being a hot day, he waited until somebody came along going that way, and counted how many steps they took.

Mrs. Amanda Bell had Tom Jackson build a new walk in her back yard last week. After he got thru he tried to be modest and said it wasn't a very good job and when Amanda agreed with him, why Tom didn't like it very well.

Joe Green, who runs one of our grocery stores, was talking the other day how he aims to be independent and say what he thinks in every instance. And while he was still on the subject, one of his best customers called on the phone to tell him he'd sent them the wrong kind of coffee, and Joe, knowing full well he sent was ordered, said it was his mistake and he'd make it right.

Enoch Budd, who recently subscribed for a daily paper at 60 cents a month, wishes now he hadn't started until next month on account of he happened to remember that June only has 30 days.

Miss Sadie Baxter took some of her friends down to the postoffice last night so they'd want to know what was in a letter she thought she'd get. But she failed to stir their curiosity any for the letter wasn't there.

Mr. and Mrs. Felix Cobb drove over into Polk county last Saturday to the place where Felix was raised. They enjoyed themselves real well looking around until they found a beech tree where Felix had put his initials a long time ago. And there were some other initials right under his, and when Felix looked at them a little dreamy like and seemed to be meditating deep, why Mrs. Cobb said it was high time for them to be starting home.

Somebody was speaking in the barber shop recently that what makes good times is for everybody to keep their money in circulation. And Wesley Mills said he wouldn't mind to do his part of that if he thought he could hold his place in the circle.

Mrs. Ed Thomas has been talking to Ed that she knows she'll never be satisfied until they have a house as big and fine as the one Jay Butler's folks live in. And by a sort of coincidence, Mrs. Butler has become considerably discouraged with their place on account of she saw one over at Newport that's a lot bigger.

Frank Pertle put in a long distance telephone call to the city yesterday to talk over a business matter, and he was a little fretted when his wife stopped him before he thought he was thru. But she explained that he started to repeat himself, and what was the use to pay for extra time to say things twice.

Noah Walls suffered some painful scratches while he was taking his noon nap last Tuesday. He was sitting up comfortable on the edge of the porch, with one of his feet down on the ground for a brace, and while he was there like that, his cat came up and started to sharpen its claws on his leg.

Consolation

The late Arnold Daly, the brilliant actor, said one day to a New York dramatic critic:

"Who'd have believed, before the World war, that actresses would appear on the stage of New York, Paris and Berlin dressed in nothing but a few ropes of pearls?"

"I met at a supper party the other night a beautiful Topeka dancing girl whose nude dances, after a great success in Europe, turned out to be a frost on Broadway. She was pretty blue. In an effort to console her I said:

"Never mind, my dear. It's the old story, you know, of the prophet who hasn't much on 'er in her own country."

THRIFT TALK
SAVING MONEY
MOST HELPFUL

Character is Molded by Self
Denial of Things He Does
Not Absolutely Need.

S. W. Straus, president American Society for Thrift says:

A young man was earning $2,200 a year. Out of this he saved $100 a month. At the end of the first year he was asked for a statement regarding his experience in submitting to such rigid self discipline and why he was willing to make these sacrifices. His letter in part was as follows:

"Saving money, for the young, unmarried man, in many cases molds his character by self-denial of things he does not need, improves his health by eliminating dissipation and encouraging regular hours of sleep, improves the quality of his work by putting him in a better physical position and lessening the number of distracting outside interests and influences."

He also explained that he was able to make such a large saving by keeping a budget. He did not feel that his habits implied stinginess or tight-fistedness, but he realized that his success in life depended on his ability to save money now. He said he had observed that few successes in the business world were permanent unless the man had learned to save money, and that he did not believe he ever would amount to much if he did not learn first of all to master himself.

He displayed a deep appreciation of thrift values when he called attention to the fact that it was not alone the money he was saving would benefit him in after years, but that to a still greater degree benefits would ensue from the strength of character which he was attaining.

By practicing thrift and thus eliminating dissipation he was able to turn his spare time to good advantage by reading the best books and otherwise fitting himself for the great work which it was his ambition to accomplish.

These are great, fundamental truths.

Those who today adhere to such practices will tomorrow be leaders of men—the administrators of the destinies of the nation.

Origin of Weather Vanes

Vanes on the top of steeples were anciently made in the form of a cock and put up in papal times to remind the clergy of watchfulness. According to Swedish belief, the crowing of the cock puts ghosts to flight.

AMUSEMENTS

A story of fighting love and a succession of rousing thrills were revealed at the Met theater last night, when "Arizona Bound," the first picture presenting Gary Cooper, Paramount's new western star, opened an engagement. It proved interesting not only because of the production itself, but because it introduces a film hero who seems destined to achieve marked popularity in the western field.

Cooper impresses one as being an actor of exceptional personality, with a tall, splendid physique that accords perfectly with the prevalent idea of the typical cowboy.

The picture abounds in suspense and thrilling action, and its manner of unfolding reflects great credit on John Waters, Paramount's famous director of Zane Grey stories, and now assigned to insure the new star an auspicious start. The backgrounds are especially beautiful.

The story deals with the adventures of Cooper, but transformed as rather a ne'er-do-well, but transformed by his love for his sweetheart and the necessity of relieving himself from unjust suspicion. How his problems are finally solved, makes a strong, swiftly-moving story. Cooper is aided by an admirable supporting cast, headed by the beautiful "velvet eyed girl," Betty Jewel, and El Brendel, a comedian who is a positive riot of mirth.

Probably with the knowledge that a screen cowboy's equine companion is of the utmost importance, Cooper has provided himself with the most beautiful horse that his reviewer has even seen in motion pictures. His name, it appears, is Flash and he threatens to rival the popularity of Tony, Silver King and Rex.

Altogether, you will find "Arizona Bound" absorbingly interesting, and extremely worth your while.

Finds Fortune in Her Back Yard Fish Farm

Watts, Calif.—A 50-foot back yard is a gold fish "factory" for Mrs. Anna G. Gray, who once kept a few pets in one glass bowl and since her first experiment in breeding, has built up a market for 12,000 goldfish, 130,000 snails and 2,500 water lilies annually.

She has developed an infinite variety of fish strains. The results show fish of silver and gold tones, some striped with black, others spotted. Some are totally black with only the glints of the virginal gold tone.

The raising of snails was a by-product of her first hatchery. The scum accumulated at the bottom of the tanks is used for their food, and the snails, in turn, sold to gardeners as scavengers.

150TH ANNI-VERSARY OF FLAG
IS JUNE 14

Flag Day—June 14—should be more of an occasion than usual, Governor Donahey points out in a proclamation Thursday, because it is Old Glory's sesquicentennial.

The governor's proclamation follows:

"One hundred and fifty years have elapsed since the Stars and Stripes were adopted by the Continental Congress as the emblem of the colonists fighting for the principles of freedom, democracy and justice. It is our duty to commemorate this occasion in a large and fitting way, thereby expressing our love and loyalty to the traditions, ideals and institutions for which the flag stands.

"The Stars and Stripes belong to the American people, regardless of social station, wealth, common fealty. The mansion may display its silken banner, the cottage its simple cotton flag, manifesting the same patriotism as well as the union of the wealthy and the humble, honoring and believing in the common standards.

"By virtue of the authority vested in me as governor of Ohio, I hereby proclaim Tuesday, June 14, 1927, as Flag Day, and hope the grand American emblem will be displayed on that day from every home and at every business and public place in Ohio."

Skim Milk Makes
Valuable Cheese

Farmers Could Get Good Money for Product Now Given to Swine.

By converting it into cottage cheese, farmers could get from 15 to 30 cents a gallon for the skim milk ordinarily fed to the hogs, according to P. H. Tracy of the dairy manufactures division, college of agriculture, University of Illinois. A gallon of skim milk will make from 1¼ to 1½ pounds of cottage cheese, which usually sells for 12½ to 20 cents a pound, he pointed out. Cottage cheese is easy to make on the farm and takes only a limited amount of equipment.

"There are various methods of making cottage cheese. The following procedure probably would be most convenient for the farm. In one method, junket, a tablet containing rennet is used, whereas in the other method the curd is set through the natural process of souring. The rennet cheese is a little more desirable.

Must Be High Quality.

"The milk used must be of high quality. It should come from clean, healthy cows. Care should be taken to see that the milk utensils have been thoroughly washed and rinsed with scalding water. They should be rinsed again just before they are used. This applies to the separator as well as the pails, strainers and cans.

"Cool the separated milk to 75 degrees and place that to be made into cheese in a vessel such as a large double boiler. If junket is to be used, dissolve the tablet in a pint of cold water and then add to the milk, stirring well. One tablet contains enough rennet to set about 50 gallons of milk and the above solution should be used accordingly. The rest should be kept cold until used, as it deteriorates rapidly at room temperatures.

"Hold the milk at a temperature as near 75 degrees as possible for about 18 to 20 hours. When it is ready to cut there will be a slight amount of whey on top, the curd will be firm and will cut clean when a spoon is passed through it.

Heat Slowly.

"Gently break up the curd into small cubes and heat slowly with very gentle agitation. If no junket has been added heat to about 92 degrees in about 30 minutes and hold at that temperature until the curd is firm enough to split open when squeezed. It should not be heated so long that it is tough and rubbery. Usually from 5 to 15 minutes will be necessary to firm the curd.

"If junket has been used, heat the curd slower but to a higher temperature, going to about 110 degrees to 112 degrees in about 60 to 75 minutes' time. Hold the cheese at 110 degrees to 112 degrees until the curd is firmed. "Drain the whey through cheese-cloth or strainer and wash curd twice with cold water in order to chill curd and remove excess acid. The wash water is removed each time the same as whey.

"As soon as the curd seems to have drained dry add salt at the rate of 2 ounces for each 10 pounds of curd, and package. A little cream will make the cheese more palatable. Glass jars or paraffined paper containers may be used to advantage for marketing the product.

"The finished product should be in the form of large mellow flakes and should not be soft or pasty or tough. Neither should it have a high acid flavor."

Ethics of Fertilizer
Industry Are Improved

The fertilizer industry has become firmly established among legitimate business institutions, according to E. B. Wells, soil specialist of the Kansas State Agricultural college. When commercial fertilizers were first introduced into Kansas, he explained, little attention was paid either to quality or grade. Flash titles, together with low price, largely determined the sale of the product.

Today manufacturers have found that if the business is to be legitimate it must be founded upon scientific reasoning and experimental evidence. The number of brands are being reduced and the quality of products are being improved. Few low grade mixtures are put upon the market today by reputable companies.

Agricultural Items

More and better maple sap comes from maple lots that are not grazed.

The waste is greater than the benefits if cattle are turned on pasture too early.

Newspapers are devoting twice as much space to agricultural news as they did five years ago.

New York ordinarily raises a surplus of dairy cattle, but last year 10,000 more dairy cows were shipped into the state than were shipped out.

In buying baby chicks, it is wise to buy them locally so you may have a chance to visit the farm and see the parent stock before placing an order.

Well-rotted barnyard manure is a good fertilizer for the garden. It should be applied at the rate of 20 tons to an acre and should be worked into the soil.

Hints of the Mode of Interest to All Women

Taffeta is emphasized as a medium for formal frocks.

Side flounces and a cape back introduce fullness into an afternoon dress of black flat crepe and white satin.

A formal afternoon dress is of georgette combined with a darker tone of velvet in three tiers on the skirt.

A black satin frock is spangled with steel and trimmed with silver lace. Very new and dressy are the small metal hats of gold or silver brocade which are draped just like the felt and velvet.

An interesting afternoon frock is made by combining plain and printed velvet. The jumper is treated with fine tucks, and the skirt is plaited at the front.

A black satin sweater is worn with a tailored dress of fancy velvet.

The smartest hats are draped in some form.

Sports and tailors make use of narrow flying panels, plaited sections and tucking. A sunburst plaited front section is featured in several sports skirts.

Fur collars and scarfs usually are of fox in beige, maroon and blue.

Linings always are in harmony, never contrast.

Large pearl buttons and bar pins accent darker dresses. (The pearl button is round, two linked together to fasten the blouse.)

Garniture of small flowers is used with fur scarfs and on fur collars—same color or tone as the ensemble.

For sports, plain pastel colors—the softer blues, blue and beige, beige. White, with sweater of white, woven with compose blue horizontal stripes. Pink—an emphatic pink, verging on rose.

For tailors, smart suits are developed in dark colors, navy predominating; also in beige.

Flowers and Feathers
Trim Parisian Chapeaux

Fickle Dame Fashion forsakes the mannish trend in millinery for feminine trimmings of feathers and flowers. Flowers, which have been entirely forsaken by the milliners, are again pronounced the last word in trimming. Feathers, also, are flying high.

Felt hats worn by fashionists returning from Paris use either large single flowers of velvet georgette or small clusters of flowers as trimmings of medium brims and turbans. Where the brim is narrow or medium the large chrysanthemum, two-toned rose or cluster of violets is placed at the side back with petals extending over the brim. Wider brims even use the underbrim flower trim. Small turbans have large petaled flowers at the side front or clusters of small flowers over the ears. Black felt shapes trimmed in white chrysanthemums or violets are popular. Navy blue felts trimmed in white are also favored since the vogue for navy is gaining in popularity daily.

Picture Frocks for Evening

Picture frocks for evening wear with slender bodices and full gathered skirts offer a flowing hem movement for slender persons. Often the skirts dip at the rear. Slender, sheathlike evening frocks are often adorned with numerous tiers of beaded fringe on the skirts, which give a slightly flared effect.

Cardigan Jacket Costumes

Three-piece cardigan jacket costumes are worn by the very youngest members of society. They are especially smart when made of knitted jersey with stripes in different colors or tinsel.

A Stiff Job

"Ah, my friend, you seem to have a very stiff neck."

"Yes, I got it while sketching in Italy."

"In an accident?"

"No, I painted the Leaning Tower of Pisa."—Sondagsnisse-Strix.

Postal Regulations

The postal laws and regulations provide that "no person will be appointed postmaster who is not a citizen of the United States, except that where the needs of the service so require a person not a citizen may be appointed a postmaster of the fourth class in case there is no other eligible candidate."

Interruptions — while you're ironing. The door, the telephone, the stove, baby, little daughter—and all call you away from your ironing. What does it mean—pulling and pushing a plug—waiting for a cold iron to heat up—delaying your ironing—wearing you out!

The Westinghouse Automatic Iron eliminates all these. It is always at perfect ironing temperature. Before it can overheat, you hear a click—and the current is automatically shut off. Before it is cool again there is another click—and the current is automatically turned on again. Surely you'll want one right away.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

At one of the most delightful of the many beautiful parties that have been given for the many June brides of this year, Miss Helen Bennett was complimented on Thursday at noon when Miss Ethyl Rife entertained with a luncheon in her honor at her home, corner of Court and Mill streets. Crimson ramblers, Dorothy Perkins and American Pillar roses decorated the home and were placed on the thirteen small tables where the luncheon was served. When the scores were counted prizes were awarded Miss Alicia Rooney and Mrs. J. J. MacKinnon. Those present from out-of-town were, Miss Agnes Sullivan, Akron; Mrs. J. J. MacKinnon, Mrs. Samuel Moffitt, Misses Nell and Alicia Rooney, Columbus; Mrs. Paul Cromley, Ashville; Mrs. Paul McGinnis, Kingston and Miss Mary Radcliffe, Williamsport.

Beautiful Old City
Long Noted Seaport

Probably the most ancient of all seaports is Joppa, on the Mediterranean coast, the nearest harbor to Jerusalem, and for centuries Palestine's most important commercial trading port of entry.

The name means "The Beautiful," and its situation well entitles it to be so called. It is built on a lofty rocky knoll on the edge of the sea, its fortifications facing seaward, with an encircling wall within which its buildings are crowded tier above tier on hewn out terraces. Surrounding it are the luxuriant plains of the Shephelah or low country, where are the groves producing the famous Jaffa oranges, the most luscious and costly the world has yet known, the olive trees which have always furnished much of its trade, fig trees and date palms, as well as the great wheat fields of the country.

How New York Will Look in 1977

A vivid forecast of how New York will look 50 years from now was pictured by Harvey Wiley Corbett, architect, speaking at the Exposition of Art in Trade held recently at R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., New York City.

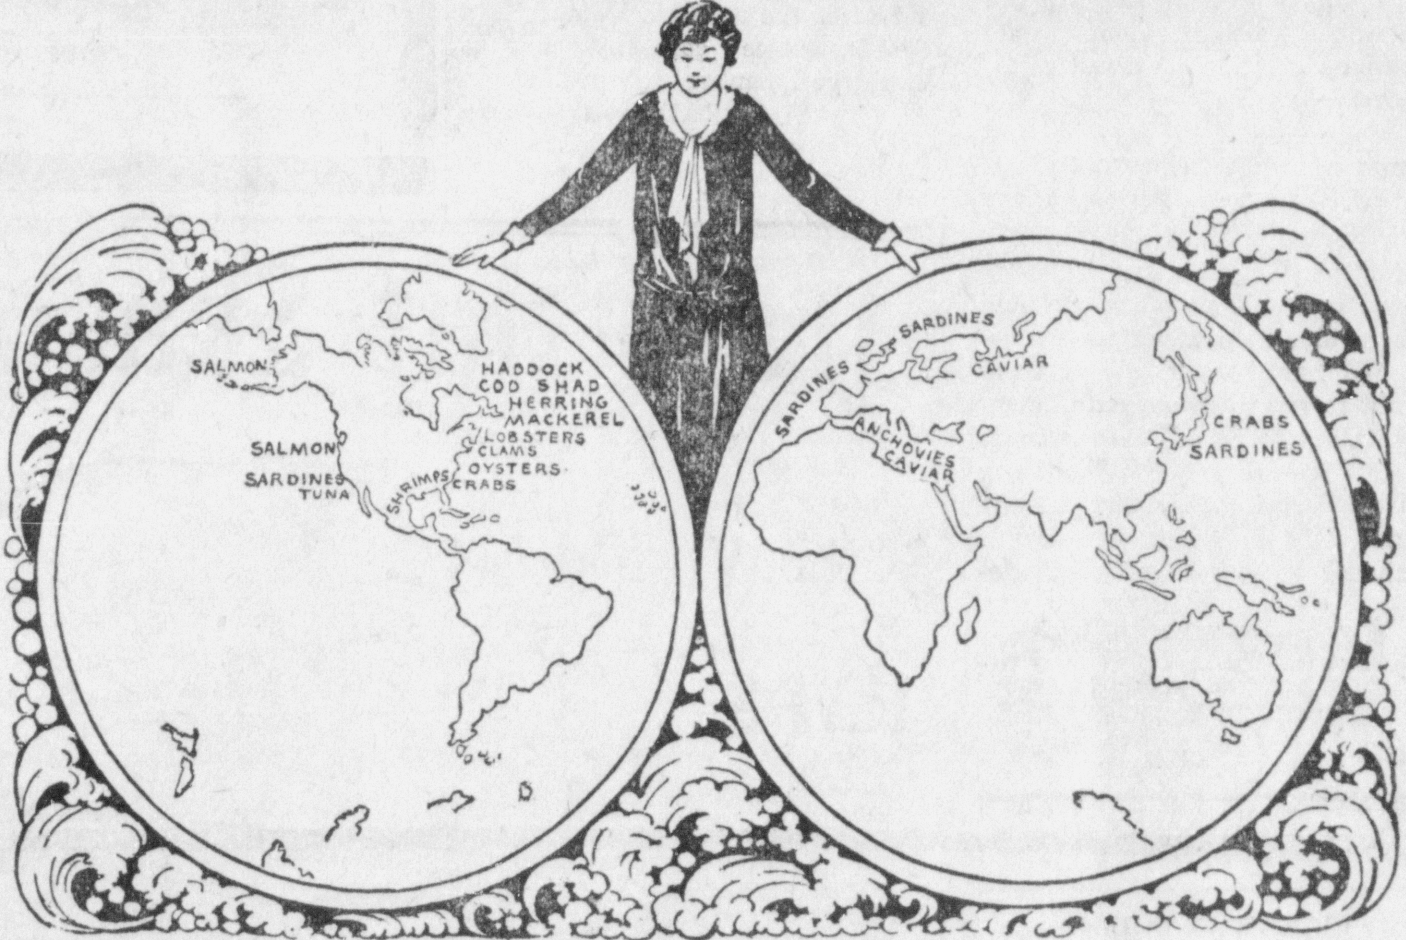

A city of gigantic towers, with pedestrian traffic separated on elevated highways from vehicular traffic moving in canals below, was predicted by Mr. Corbett.

"New York will be a modern Venice, with motors instead of water, filling the canals," he said. "The big stores will have two entrances, one below for automobiles and one on the second story level for pedestrians. Shoppers will be able to walk about from store to store undisturbed by traffic. The open park plazas will be lifted to a level with the pedestrian lanes, and the space below will be used for parking motors.

"The 'step-back' skyscrapers of the future will have moving stairs on the outside of the building, instead of elevators, with facilities for passengers to alight at any floor. There will be aeroplane landings everywhere. Artificial light, now in its infancy, will revolutionize our life, turning night completely into day. The city's business hours will be 24, instead of eight or ten; people will work in six hour shifts. We shall get our food probably by radio, with convenient radio food broadcasting stations at every corner. The churches of the future will be located atop of the great commercial buildings, commanding attention, instead of being buried in nondescript buildings below."

Some Fish Geography

AFTER Nicholas Appert's invention of canning saved sailors from the scourge of scurvy by providing them with garden foods and fresh meats, the sea returned the compliment by sending deep-sea dainties to people who live far inland. Today there are thirty-five varieties of fish products canned, and the housewife finds at least as many more ways of using them.

People of every race live in the United States, and they have brought their liking for their native foods with them. Consequently we have "finnan haddie," French Caviar, sardines, and anchovies from the Mediterranean chiefly as appetizers in various recipes for hors d'oeuvres. But much of the fish labelled "imported" comes from under the jurisdiction of Canada, with which country the United States has a friendly agreement about fisheries. Canned haddock, cod, herring, mackerel, sardines, shad, and shell fish are largely east coast industries; salmon and tuna fish are canned chiefly on the west coast.

In all fish lore the sardine has the most curious history. Guiglio Trentino, an Italian, began preserving pilchard minnows on the island of Sardinia about 1850. He called them "sardines." France, Spain and Italy began to put up these minnows too, and small sprats as well. In Norway they can mussa and sild fish and call them sardines. In Maine and in Japan the fish used are small herring; in California, a species of pilchard, and in other countries various kinds of small fish. It will be seen that there is no such fish as a sardine. As a matter of fact the kind of fish canned as sardines does not matter much; the quality depends on the way they are canned. The little fish are so delicate that they must be handled with great care. The general procedure is to behead, clean and wash them, fry them in deep fat, drain, pack them carefully in flat tins, and fill the tins with olive oil.

Oysters, so often the housewife's standby for a cocktail, soup, or scallop, are put up chiefly in Maryland, down the Atlantic coast to Florida and around the Gulf of Mexico. Along the north Atlantic coast they were once abundant, but now must be artificially cultivated, and fresh oysters bring such good prices in eastern cities that it does not pay to can them.

Who has not tasted, and asked for clam chowder? Three kinds of clams are packed, the hard and soft clams of the Atlantic coast, and a Pacific coast species, the razor clam. Shrimps, crabs, and lobsters make the foundation for some of the inland housewife's most attractive and nutritious salads. Shrimps are canned chiefly in States bordering on the Gulf of Mexico where they are abundant. Only the tail is eaten. Canned crabs come mostly from the Norfolk and Virginia coast and from Japan where crabs are plentiful and the people work for small wages to can them. Lobsters are caught in traps or pots along the North Atlantic coast, and brought alive to the cannery, boiled for about thirty minutes, and their meat taken from the shell in as large pieces as possible.

Only a beginning has been made along the sea coasts of America in preparing and canning anchovies, although these beautiful, small fish, blue-brown and silvery white, are abundant along our coasts. The Mediterranean is famous for anchovies, the industry of picking and spicing them being mainly carried on near its shores. Anchovies are an ancient appetizer. They were a favorite at Roman banquets in early times.

Caviar, the famous Russian tidbit, recently become familiar in American stores and markets, was originally made from roe of sturgeon, but now excellent caviar, made from the roe of salmon, codfish, herring, or white fish, can be bought at lower prices.

The tuna is a splendid game of the mackerel species which was not used for canning until 1903. In that year A. P. Hallihill, a sardine canner, near San Pedro, faced financial ruin because of the failure of the sardine run. So he turned to tuna fish, finding a means of preserving them by a special steam process. Canned with fine salad oil, the tuna attained so great a popularity that it now stands third in the value of all our tinned sea foods. Its flesh resembles chicken. It is often called "chicken of the sea" and is served many times in place of meat. Creamed on toast, or in salads it always finds enthusiastic favor.

Salmon is a story by itself. Most of the world's salmon is put up near the mouths of four of the longest salmon rivers: the Yukon, the Columbia, the Fraser, and the Copper. Canned salmon is used baked, in soup, cold in salads and sandwiches, fried in hors d'oeuvres, and in many other ways. Like some other sea fish, it contains iodine, so necessary to the inland dweller, and in food value as well as popularity ranks first among sea foods.

It would be hard to find a housewife who does not keep at least a few cans of the food on her shelves,

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Friday noon at the Chillicothe County club Miss Anne Harmount, of Chillicothe, entertained with a bridge luncheon honoring Miss Helen Bennett, of this city, who will be married June 23 to Mr. Foster Weldon, of Chicago, Illinois. Mrs. Harry W. Heffner, Mrs. J. P. Noecker and Miss Miriam Ruggles were among the guests.

About sixty members and friends of the Presbyterian Missionary society gathered at the manse for their June meeting. Thru the kindness of many friends the manse was profusely decorated with the beautiful June flowers. After a brief business meeting, presided over by Mrs. Clark Hunsicker, the speaker of the day, Mrs. Frank Throop, of Columbus, was introduced. Mrs. Throop was for many years a missionary in China, and her talk abounded in delightful personal reminiscences. Her photographs of Chinese Christian Bible women, of a Chinese Christian band, of doctors and nurses and of a little boy who was saved from death thru Mrs. Throop's care, added greatly to the interest of her talk.

During the social hour, which followed Miss Katherine May and Miss Helen Steele sang a pleasing duet, "Summer Voices" and Mrs. Joseph Wilder with Mrs. Toensmeier played the overture from "Worms," which was received with appreciation.

Delightful refreshments were served by the hostesses; Mrs. Toensmeier, Mrs. Sarah Crow, Mrs. J. O. Eagleston, Miss Grand-Girard, Mrs. Charles Smith and Mrs. D. V. Courtwright.

The Rev. Howard E. Sheely, pastor of the Stoutsville charge of the Reformed church, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Sheeley, York, Pennsylvania, and Miss Louise Crites, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Crites, of Stoutsville, were married Wednesday morning, June 8, at 10:30 o'clock in the Heidelberg Reformed church, Stoutsville. A ceremony undetentionary enough to make it simple in its beauty was conducted by the Rev. Arthur Lemming, Lima, Ohio. The officiating clergyman was a classmate of the Rev. Mr. Sheely during his college and seminary training.

The decorative scheme in the church was pink and white. The auditorium of the Heidelberg church was crowded to its capacity with relatives and friends of the principals in the ceremony. The bride was beautifully attired in a gown of white satin and wore a veil trimmed with orange blossoms and pearls. She entered the church on the arm of her father. Mrs. Sheely had for her maid of honor, Miss Melba White, of Athens, Ohio, with whom she was associated while a student at Ohio university. Miss White wore a pink satin crepe rowa gown and wore a leghorn picture hat. The bride carried a bouquet of white rose buds while her maid of honor's flowers were pink roses. The bride was also attended by her sister, little Rosemary Crites as a bridesmaid. She wore a frock of white crepe de-chine with hat to match and carried a basket filled with pink roses. Charles Sheely, a brother of the bridegroom, also formed a portion of the procession as ring bearer. The ring was carried in a large pink rose by Master Sheely. The Rev. Mr. Sheely had for his best man Forry W. Stauffer, of York, Pennsylvania, a former classmate of his while in college. Miss Edna Sheely, of York, a sister of the bridegroom, presided at the piano and played "Andante Religioso," by Thomas, as the processional. During the ceremony she rendered Salut D'Amour, by Elgar and for the recessional Mendelssohn's wedding march. The Rev. Mr. Sheely, present pastor of the Stoutsville charge of the Reformed church, is a graduate of the York, Pennsylvania, high school being a member of the class of 1919. The following year he entered Ursinus college, Collegeville, Pennsylvania, from which institution of learning he was graduated in 1923. He then planned a three year course of study in the Central Theological seminary, Dayton, Ohio. From that time forth he has been part of the Stoutsville charge. Mrs. Sheely received her preparatory school training in the Stoutsville high school having been graduated from that institution in 1920. She then took a course in Ohio university, Athens and Heidelberg university, Tiffin, Ohio. She graduated from the latter school with the class of 1924.

Immediately following the wedding ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Stout. Rev. and Mrs. Sheely left on an extended motor trip thru the east. They expect to be at home about July 1, at the Reformed church parsonage in Stoutsville, O.

JACKSON TOWNSHIP

CLOTHING CLUB.

The third meeting of the Jackson township Clothing club was held at the schoolhouse June 1. Eighteen members were present. The roll call was answered by the question "Do You read 'True Stories'?"

At this meeting the first year girls drafted their apron patterns and those that had the material there started on them. The second year girls learned how to "hem patch." The third year girls examined the "overhand patch" and looked over patterns for their dresses.

Our leader asked the second and third year girls questions about last year's work which I am sure helped the girls a lot.

Demonstrations were given by Dorothy Petty, Melva Phillips and Bessie Clark.

The next meeting will be held at the school house June 15, at 10 a. m.

Last year's honor girls were entertained to a fishing party given by our lady, Miss Mary Shortridge. A fine time was enjoyed by all.

STILL HAVE FAITH IN ODD "MEDICINE"

Faith in a bottle of medicine for all real and imaginary ailments is a characteristic of the English working classes. In insurance practice, in which the check of expense does not act and the physicians are complacent, this leads to much wasteful expenditure on drugs. In London the insured numbered 1,890,786, July 6, last year, and for these 7,408,518 prescriptions were issued in the course of a year—an average of more than four apiece for the whole number and a much higher figure (not given) for those who were ill or thought themselves so ill as to consult a panel physician. The cost of the drugs was more than $5,000,000. One defense of this extensive drugging is that the bottle of medicine has a psychological effect on the insured person which makes him feel better. After this, should the poor savage be despised for his faith in incantations and charms? —American Medical Journal.

PLAN ADVANCE ON "SCIENTIFIC FRONT"

Smithsonian Explorers Have Ranged Many Lands.

Washington.—How science ranges the world in a quiet, ceaseless quest for material with which to build fuller conceptions of our universe is well illustrated by the Smithsonian Institution's exploration pamphlet for 1926, which is just off the press. The book might properly be called "The Adventure of Science." It describes briefly 35 excursions into the field—if trips to Sumatra, to China, to Algeria, Baluchistan and southwest Africa, to Alaska, may correctly be called excursions. Their purpose included, among others, the capture of live wild game, the unearthing of buried villages which flourished in prehistoric America, the collection of fossil footprints and fossil elephants and shells, the gathering of ferns in West Indian mountains, and of minerals in Mexico. The short impersonal narratives evoke the picture of men keenly expectant before the curtained stage of nature. They bury forever the dead myth of the "dry-as-dust" character of science.

The introduction to the pamphlet reveals that "during the past year more expeditions in which the Smithsonian was represented have gone out than ever before, and this in spite of the fact that the institution has practically no unrestricted funds for field work."

Field Work Essential.

"Field work is essential to the advance of nearly all branches of science," continues the introduction, "particularly those which the Smithsonian institution is at present engaged in promoting, namely, geology, biology, anthropology and astrophysics. The institution, therefore, embraces every opportunity of putting expeditions in the field to obtain desired information or collections, either under its own auspices through financial assistance from its friends or in co-operation with other agencies which will benefit equally from the work."

The year's expeditions were headed by a 30,000-mile journey to Algeria, Baluchistan and southwest Africa, undertaken by Dr. C. G. Abbot, acting secretary of the Smithsonian, under the auspices of the National Geographic society and the Smithsonian, to select a site for a solar observatory in the eastern hemisphere. He picked Mount Brukkaros among the Hottentots of southwest Africa and the observatory is already functioning there. The purpose of the field work of the Smithsonian's astrophysical observatory, according to Doctor Abbot, has been aimed for the last eight years to solve the question of whether the sun varies, and, if so, what effects on our weather do the changes of solar heat produce?

Another section of Africa—Tanganyika territory—provided the scene for the Smithsonian-Chrysler live-game collecting expedition under Dr. William B. Mann. The expedition brought home about 1,700 live animals for the national zoological park under Smithsonian direction, including a pair of giraffes, five impalla, a greater kudu, an eland, a blue duiker, red duiker, three white-bearded kru, four warthogs and quantities of birds, small mammals and reptiles.

The success of the expedition was made possible by the hearty co-operation of the game department of Tanganyika, and an all-inclusive license from the governor. This proved invaluable, because of the numerous native gamekeepers who were constantly dropping in on the camp, asking to see the license, taking its number and the names of the party and inquiring from the native hunters what the purpose of the expedition was. The license also enabled Doctor Mann to hire 90 porters of the Wam-boro and Wambugo tribes, who are so swift that they can run down animals.

Several attempts to capture young rhino failed, due to the absence of young. Adult rhinos charged the party five times, without inflicting serious damage. Doctor Mann refutes the theory that the tick birds warn their hosts of an approaching enemy. These birds cluster thickly on the rhinoceros to eat the ticks which are so abundant on his body. At the approach of any suspicious object the tick birds make a loud twittering, thereby indicating to men the whereabouts of the rhinoceros.

Queen Mary Has Stalls in Stables Tiled Green

London.—The royal stables at Buckingham palace have been renovated and, at Queen Mary's suggestion, every stall has been tiled in jade green. The feeding boxes are of wood, painted white, and the name of each horse is inscribed in black above the stall.

King George takes a great interest in his horses and the royal grooms have to keep them ready for his inspection at any moment. His majesty is a keen rider and often is seen in Rotten row, the horse track in Hyde park, at seven o'clock in the morning during the summer.

His majesty's favorite horse is Anzac. In the next stall to Anzac is Haig, the charger that carried Earl Haig throughout the great war.

Birds Have Colds

Pierre, S. D.—Even birds are subject to colds. Naturalists have decided that hundreds of larks which died near here on the way north were victims of bronchial pneumonia, induced by too early migration.

USE OVERSIZE TIRES

For More Mileage—Slight Extra
Expense Is Justified, Says
Firestone Dealer.

"The use of oversize tires will enable many motorists to get much greater satisfaction and longer mileage than with regular tires," according to "Bones" Hammel, Firestone dealer in Circleville.

"Motor cars are equipped with tires that are ample for any ordinary use, provided they are inflated to the correct pressure. However, most motorists abuse their tires by overloading them and through failure to keep them 'pumped up.'"

greater margin of safety, and in the long run justifies the extra expense. There are many advantages to using oversize tires, including more comfortable riding, better braking with less tendency to skid, and less tire trouble. The larger tire is not so easily cut or bruised and the tread wears much longer.

"Last but not least, the oversize tire will average far greater mileage, which in terms of cost per mile, means economy. In tires as in everything else, it pays to buy dependable, quality merchandise and Firestones have a long established reputation for being the leader in that field."

STATE FAIR TRACK RECORD IS BROKEN

Peter Manning, speedy trotter, broke all records for the Ohio State Fair track in a workout Thursday and shattered the world's record for the month of June when he did a mile in two minutes, four and one-half seconds, according to Charles V. Truax, state director of agriculture. He did the last half in one minute flat. Peter Manning was running against Bumble Bee, thoroughbred mare.

Thousands of Motorists Throng Roads To National Beauty Spots of West

The wide world beckons and the motorist is answering the vacation call. New roads, new conveniences and new services have made the whole United States almost as close as the wheel of one's car. Thousands and scores of thousands of motorists all over the land are responding to the travel lure. They are going from each place and in all directions.

New roads in the far West this year and improved old roads have made practically every national beauty spot pleasantly accessible and there is already an indication that the great national parks will make records for visitors this year never before approached. But no matter how many come the parks will not be crowded. To the man in the East, park mean a green spot in a city. To the Westerner it means a great preserve of natural beauty, in many instances containing thousands of square miles. And it is equipped to take care of visitors. The visitors may either camp or may stop at mountain lodges as fine as any.

Some of the points that are now included on a complete all summer motor trip to the Pacific Coast alternating as between North and South on the go and return journey are:

Glacier National Park, Yellowstone National Park, the Columbia River Highway, the Snoqualmie Falls and Pass, Rainier National Park, the Mount Hood Loop, Crater Lake National Park and then the famous series in California—Mount Shasta, the Mount Lassen Volcanic National Park showing the only active volcano in the United States, the Redwood Highway, Muir Woods, Yosemite National Park with its matchless waterfalls and rock formation, the Sequoia National Park with its General Sherman Tree, thirty-six and one-half feet

in diameter and with five thousand trees greater than ten feet in diameter in an area of two miles square. Los Angeles, Hollywood and Old Mexico. Then on the Sothern route, Zion National Park, Bryce Canyon, the Kaibab National Forest, the Petrified Forest, the Grand Canyon and the residences of the pre-historic cliff dwellers, and Indian pueblos where the native American still lives much as he did before Cortez came to the shores of North America.

If any of our readers wish to make a motor journey to the Pacific Coast that touches Southern California on either the going or return journey, by special arrangement, the Automobile Club of Southern California will act as their guide and servant without charge. Write or telegraph the club, mentioning this paper, at its headquarters, Twenty-sixth and Figueroa streets, Los Angeles. Say from what point you will start, give the time of start and the time you hope to be back home again. Mention the several important places on the route that you want to visit. The Club will then send you complete detail route maps, selecting the go and return routes so that the journey will be pleasantest from a weather standpoint. Say whether you are going to camp out, camp in motor camps or stay in hotels. If specific information is wanted, make the request definitely in the communication. On arrival in Southern California the Automobile Club will make the visitor a guest member without charge. These courtesies are extended in return for the courtesies invariably shown to California motorists when traveling in the other parts of the United States. All of our readers intending the journey should avail themselves of the offer. It will make their journey decidedly more pleasant and workmanlike than if they pioneer.

Money In Farm Waste
Straw Once A Waste Product Is Now Being Utilized

The scientist who discovered that the highest known quality of insulating board can be manufactured from a waste by-product of the farm must have been a direct descendant of the inventor of the mousetrap that caused a well-beaten path to be worn in the wilderness where he made his abode. Mankind always pays tribute to genius, no matter in what form it may be expressed. The mousetrap served its purpose in inspiring a literary gem, improving the highways in a run-down neighborhood, and, probably, in snaring its quota of mice. The name of its maker escapes us for the moment.

The big idea is this. Merit always reaches the goal just ahead of the other fellow. Merit may not be the first to start, but it always lands the prize. As Punch so aptly expressed it, "true merit, like the pearl inside the oyster, is content to remain quiet until it finds an opening."

For years the men of science have been delving into the mysteries of Nature in an effort to learn her secrets. Some few they have discovered—mixtures, compounds and combinations of the elements that produce astounding results—the radio, telegraph, telephone, phonograph, electric light and other inventions that "puzzle the wif" and make us wonder where it will finally end. When will mankind attain the ultimate in knowledge of Nature's secrets?

When the scientist can convert a waste by-product, such as straw, into a "board that is impervious to moisture, heat, cold and sound, that is highly fire resistant, virtually indestructible and make it a commercial commodity of primary importance, at the same time giving the farmer a source of revenue that he hardly dared to dream of, the possibilities of laboratory research and its potential and actual influence on mankind are barely glimpsed by the layman.

We see only the result of the scientist's patient labor—the finished insulating building board of straw. The long hours that stretched into days and weeks and months and years escape us. We do not see him at his task of combining alien elements, compounding strange mixtures, discarding the proven unfit, testing and re-testing until finally his long research is rewarded—the one material that meets all the requirements of insulation in its highest form is revealed in the humble straw, a waste by-product of the wheat harvest.

Wheat has been grown since the dawn of creation. The earliest records of it are in the Bible. The valleys of Mesopotamia were upturned with oxen-drawn plows made of a forked stick. The grain was threshed by oxen trampling it. Then, as now, the straw was a useless by-product. Through all the years that followed since that remote period man has saved the wheat and discarded the straw, because he didn't know what to do with it. Thousands of years passed before he discovered that he had cast away untold millions of dollars worth of golden straw.

Burroughs, the naturalist, said "Nature is not only wasteful, but cruel." The waste of straw that stretches so far back through the centuries is about to be corrected through the advanced knowledge of man. Even now a great mill is building at St. Joseph, Mo., for the utilization of the straw discard of the golden-hued wheatlands of the central west. This mill will be the most modern of its kind in the world. Where the straw goes in at one end and emerges continuous a board ½-inch thick, 12 feet wide—it is then cut in panels 4 feet wide any any desired length. Built at the gateway of the greatest wheat-growing section in the world, it will afford a ready market to the wheat growers of Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas for a by-product that formerly passed from its stage of existence in an aureole of flame, because that was the easiest and quickest way to get rid of it.

Maybe, in the course of time, corn stalks, weeds and other vegetation may find an outlet to the channels of trade and become a source of revenue to the owner of the land on which they were produced. Who knows?

Rush Order
John has implicit faith in his mother, but he stepped over the edge the other day. He is in high school and has just reached the age of quick decisions.
"Mother," he said, "can you devil me a dozen eggs, fix me ten sandwiches and bake me some beans in 45 minutes? I've got to have them quick?"
"Well, John," replied the smiling mother, "I've always jumped for you, but I can't do that. I can fix the eggs and sandwiches, but you'll have to get your beans elsewhere. There is a limit to what a mother can do."—Indianapolis News.

The Good Detective
Grant Crabtree, chief clerk of the New York police department, described at a dinner a brilliant piece of work on the part of a New York detective.
"Yes," Mr. Crabtree ended. "George found three hairs from the murderer's mustache, and the rest was easy. A little knowledge is a dangerous thing—if a detective like George gets hold of it."

Army Corps Insignia
The insignia of the quartermaster corps of the army is a sword and key crossed on a wheel surmounted by a spread eagle. The significance of the insignia is as follows: The wheel represents transportation; the key, store and supply keeper; the sword, military supplies, the eagle, the national emblem.

FLAG DAY.

Tuesday is the birthday of the United States flag. It floats at the tops of buildings and is carried at the head of processions. You cheer it. You love it and day after day you promise allegiance to the ideals for which it stands.

Sometimes you think a bit about it and wonder what there is in a bit of bunting marked with stripes and stars in bright colors, to make a people feel that way about it.

The flag is a symbol—a sign. It stands for everything we of America hold dear—Ideals of liberty, justice, humanity and loving kindness that every American likes to think inspires his life.

We believe in justice, tempered with mercy. We believe in liberty of thought, of speech, of written word and self directed deeds, with a decent regard for the opinions of mankind.

We believe in freedom, but no act of ours is true to the standards of American breeding if it strikes at the right of another to be happy and at peace. This involves the right of national self determination.

These are the ideals you salute when you raise your hand in reverence to your flag. They are the plus of the flag that symbolizes four freedom. Make them your own on the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the American flag.

"Your Flag and my Flag!"
And, oh, how much it holds—
Your land and my land—
Secure within its folds!
Your heart and my heart
Beat quicker at the sight;
Sun-kissed and wind-tossed,
Red and blue and white.
The one Flag—the great Flag—the
Flag for me and you—
Glorified all else beside—the red and white and blue."FARM FOR SALE.

150TH ANNI-VERSARY OF FLAG
IS JUNE 14

Flag Day—June 14—should be more of an occasion than usual, Governor Donahey points out in a proclamation Thursday, because it is Old Glory's sesquicentennial.

The governor's proclamation follows:

"One hundred and fifty years have elapsed since the Stars and Stripes were adopted by the Continental Congress as the emblem of the colonists fighting for the principles of freedom, democracy and justice. It is our duty to commemorate this occasion in a large and fitting way, thereby expressing our love and loyalty to the traditions, ideals and institutions for which the flag stands.

"The Stars and Stripes belong to the American people, regardless of social station, wealth, common fealty. The mansion may display its silken banner, the cottage its simple cotton flag, manifesting the same patriotism as well as the union of the wealthy and the humble, honoring and believing in the common standards.

"By virtue of the authority vested in me as governor of Ohio, I hereby proclaim Tuesday, June 14, 1927, as Flag Day, and hope the grand American emblem will be displayed on that day from every home and at every business and public place in Ohio."

Skim Milk Makes
Valuable Cheese

Farmers Could Get Good Money for Product Now Given to Swine.

By converting it into cottage cheese, farmers could get from 15 to 30 cents a gallon for the skim milk ordinarily fed to the hogs, according to P. H. Tracy of the dairy manufactures division, college of agriculture, University of Illinois. A gallon of skim milk will make from 1¼ to 1½ pounds of cottage cheese, which usually sells for 12½ to 20 cents a pound, he pointed out. Cottage cheese is easy to make on the farm and takes only a limited amount of equipment.

"There are various methods of making cottage cheese. The following procedure probably would be most convenient for the farm. In one method, junket, a tablet containing rennet is used, whereas in the other method the curd is set through the natural process of souring. The rennet cheese is a little more desirable.

Must Be High Quality.

"The milk used must be of high quality. It should come from clean, healthy cows. Care should be taken to see that the milk utensils have been thoroughly washed and rinsed with scalding water. They should be rinsed again just before they are used. This applies to the separator as well as the pails, strainers and cans.

"Cool the separated milk to 75 degrees and place that to be made into cheese in a vessel such as a large double boiler. If junket is to be used, dissolve the tablet in a pint of cold water and then add to the milk, stirring well. One tablet contains enough rennet to set about 50 gallons of milk and the above solution should be used accordingly. The rest should be kept cold until used, as it deteriorates rapidly at room temperatures.

"Hold the milk at a temperature as near 75 degrees as possible for about 18 to 20 hours. When it is ready to cut there will be a slight amount of whey on top, the curd will be firm and will cut clean when a spoon is passed through it.

Heat Slowly.

"Gently break up the curd into small cubes and heat slowly with very gentle agitation. If no junket has been added heat to about 92 degrees in about 30 minutes and hold at that temperature until the curd is firm enough to split open when squeezed. It should not be heated so long that it is tough and rubbery. Usually from 5 to 15 minutes will be necessary to firm the curd.

"If junket has been used, heat the curd slower but to a higher temperature, going to about 110 degrees to 112 degrees in about 60 to 75 minutes' time. Hold the cheese at 110 degrees to 112 degrees until the curd is firmed. "Drain the whey through cheese-cloth or strainer and wash curd twice with cold water in order to chill curd and remove excess acid. The wash water is removed each time the same as whey.

"As soon as the curd seems to have drained dry add salt at the rate of 2 ounces for each 10 pounds of curd, and package. A little cream will make the cheese more palatable. Glass jars or paraffined paper containers may be used to advantage for marketing the product.

"The finished product should be in the form of large mellow flakes and should not be soft or pasty or tough. Neither should it have a high acid flavor."

Ethics of Fertilizer

Industry Are Improved

The fertilizer industry has become firmly established among legitimate business institutions, according to E. B. Wells, soil specialist of the Kansas State Agricultural college. When commercial fertilizers were first introduced into Kansas, he explained, little attention was paid either to quality or grade. Flash titles, together with low price, largely determined the sale of the product.

Today manufacturers have found that if the business is to be legitimate it must be founded upon scientific reasoning and experimental evidence. The number of brands are being reduced and the quality of products are being improved. Few low grade mixtures are put upon the market today by reputable companies.

Agricultural Items

More and better maple sap comes from maple lots that are not grazed.

The waste is greater than the benefits if cattle are turned on pasture too early.

Newspapers are devoting twice as much space to agricultural news as they did five years ago.

New York ordinarily raises a surplus of dairy cattle, but last year 10,000 more dairy cows were shipped into the state than were shipped out.

In buying baby chicks, it is wise to buy them locally so you may have a chance to visit the farm and see the parent stock before placing an order.

Well-rotted barnyard manure is a good fertilizer for the garden. It should be applied at the rate of 20 tons to an acre and should be worked into the soil.

Brown Plaid Tweed Is Used for Sport Coat

This very attractive sport coat, worn by Mary Astor, the screen actress, is of brown plaid tweed. It is very comfortable on a cool, windy day. The collar and cuffs are of natural red fox.

Hints of the Mode of

Interest to All Women

Taffeta is emphasized as a medium for formal frocks.

Side flounces and a cape back introduce fullness into an afternoon dress of black flat crepe and white satin.

A formal afternoon dress is of georgette combined with a darker tone of velvet in three tiers on the skirt.

A black satin frock is spangled with steel and trimmed with silver lace.

Very new and dressy are the small metal hats of gold or silver brocade which are draped just like the felt and velvet.

An interesting afternoon frock is made by combining plain and printed velvet. The jumper is treated with fine tucks, and the skirt is plaited at the front.

A black satin sweater is worn with a tailored dress of fancy velvet.

The smartest hats are draped in some form.

Sports and talleurs make use of narrow flying panels, plaited sections and tucking. A sunburst plaited front section is featured in several sports skirts.

Fur collars and scarfs usually are of fox in beige, maroon and blue.

Linings always are in harmony, never contrast.

Large pearl buttons and bar pins accent darker dresses. (The pearl button is round, two linked together to fasten the blouse.)

Garniture of small flowers is used with fur scarfs and on fur collars—same color or tone as the ensemble.

For sports, plain pastel colors—the softer blues, blue and beige, beige. White, with sweater of white, woven with compose blue horizontal stripes. Pink—an emphatic pink, verging on rose.

For tailleurs, smart suits are developed in dark colors, navy predominating; also in beige.

Flowers and Feathers

Trim Parisian Chapeaux

Flickie Dame Fashion forsakes the mannish trend in millinery for feminine trimmings of feathers and flowers. Flowers, which have been entirely forsaken by the milliners, are again pronounced the last word in trimming. Feathers, also, are flying high.

Felt hats worn by fashionists returning from Paris use either large single flowers of velvet georgette or small clusters of flowers as trimmings of medium brims and turbans. Where the brim is narrow or medium the large chrysanthemum, two-toned rose or cluster of violets is placed at the side back with petals extending over the brim. Wider brims even use the underbrim flower trim. Small turbans have large petaled flowers at the side front or clusters of small flowers over the ears. Black felt shapes trimmed in white chrysanthemums or violets are popular. Navy blue felts trimmed in white are also favored since the vogue for navy is gaining in popularity daily.

Picture Frocks for Evening

Picture frocks for evening wear with slender bodices and full gathered skirts offer a flowing hem movement for slender persons. Often the skirts dip at the rear. Slender, sheathlike evening frocks are often adorned with numerous tiers of beaded fringe on the skirts, which give a slightly flared effect.

Cardigan Jacket Costumes

Three-piece cardigan jacket costumes are worn by the very youngest members of society. They are especially smart when made of knitted jersey with stripes in different colors or tinsel.

A Stiff Job

"Ah, my friend, you seem to have a very stiff neck."

"Yes, I got it while sketching in Italy."

"In an accident?"

"No, I painted the Leaning Tower of Pisa."—Sondagnisse-Strix.

Invisible

Lady—Will you please tell me the best way to remove a stain from the carpet?

Smart Salesman—One method is to cut neatly around the stain with a safety razor blade and then train the cat to sleep over the hole.

Postal Regulations

The postal laws and regulations provide that "no person will be appointed postmaster who is not a citizen of the United States, except that where the needs of the service so require a person not a citizen may be appointed a postmaster of the fourth class in case there is no other eligible candidate."

Setting Plaster of Paris

Plaster of paris is caused to set more quickly if some alum is dissolved in the water used for rendering it plastic. Borax may also be employed for the same purpose.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

At one of the most delightful of the many beautiful parties that have been given for the many June brides of this year, Miss Helen Bennett was complimented on Thursday at noon when Miss Ethyl Rife entertained with a luncheon in her honor at her home, corner of Court and Mill streets. Crimson ramblers, Dorothy Perkins and American Pillar roses decorated the home and were placed on the thirteen small tables where the luncheon was served. When the scores were counted prizes were awarded Miss Alicia Rooney and Mrs. J. J. MacKinnon. Those present from out-of-town were, Miss Agnes Sullivan, Akron; Mrs. J. J. MacKinnon, Mrs. Samuel Moffitt, Misses Nell and Alicia Rooney, Columbus; Mrs. Paul Cromley, Ashville; Mrs. Paul McGinnis, Kingston and Miss Mary Radcliffe, Williamsport.

Beautiful Old City
Long Noted Seaport

Probably the most ancient of all seaports is Joppa, on the Mediterranean coast, the nearest harbor to Jerusalem, and for centuries Palestine's most important commercial trading port of entry. The name means "The Beautiful," and its situation well entitles it to be so called. It is built on a lofty rocky knoll on the edge of the sea, its fortifications facing seaward, with an encircling wall within which its buildings are crowded tier above tier on hewn out terraces. Surrounding it are the luxuriant plains of the Shephelah or low country, where are the groves producing the famous Jaffa oranges, the most luscious and costly the world has yet known, the olive trees which have always furnished much of its trade, fig trees and date palms, as well as the great wheat fields of the country.

A vivid forecast of how New York will look 50 years from now was pictured by Harvey Wiley Corbett, architect, speaking at the Exposition of Art in Trade held recently at R. H. Macy & Co., Inc., New York City.
A city of gigantic towers, with pedestrian traffic separated on elevated highways from vehicular traffic moving in canals below, was predicted by Mr. Corbett. "New York will be a modern Venice, with motors instead of water, filling the canals," he said. "The big stores will have two entrances, one below for automobiles and one on the second story level for pedestrians. Shoppers will be able to walk about from store to store undisturbed by traffic. The open park plazas will be lifted to a level with the pedestrian lanes, and the space below will be used for parking motors.
"The 'step-back' skyscrapers of the future will have moving stairs on the outside of the building, instead of elevators, with facilities for passengers to alight at any floor. There will be aeroplane landings everywhere. Artificial light, now in its infancy, will revolutionize our life, turning night completely into day. The city's business hours will be 24, instead of eight or ten; people will work in six hour shifts. We shall get our food probably by radio, with convenient radio food broadcasting stations at every corner. The churches of the future will be located atop of the great commercial buildings, commanding attention, instead of being buried in nondescript buildings below."

Some Fish Geography

AFTER Nicholas Appert's invention of canning saved sailors from the scourge of scurvy by providing them with garden foods and fresh meats, the sea returned the compliment by sending deep-sea dainties to people who live far inland. Today there are thirty-five varieties of fish products canned, and the housewife finds at least as many more ways of using them.
People of every race live in the United States, and they have brought their liking for their native foods with them. Consequently we have "finnan haddie," French Caviar, sardines, and anchovies from the Mediterranean chiefly as appetizers in various recipes for hors d'oeuvres. But much of the fish labelled "imported" comes from under the jurisdiction of Canada, with which country the United States has a friendly agreement about fisheries. Canned haddock, cod, herring, mackerel, sardines, shad, and shell fish are largely east coast industries; salmon and tuna fish are canned chiefly on the west coast.
In all fish lore the sardine has the most curious history. Guiglio Trentino, an Italian, began preserving pilchard minnows on the island of Sardinia about 1850. He called them "sardines." France, Spain and Italy began to put up these minnows too, and small sprats as well. In Norway they can mussa and sild fish and call them sardines. In Maine and in Japan the fish used are small herring; in California, a species of pilchard, and in other countries various kinds of small fish. It will be seen that there is no such fish as a sardine. As a matter of fact the kind of fish canned as sardines does not matter much; the quality depends on the way they are canned. The little fish are so delicate that they must be handled with great care. The general procedure is to behead, clean and wash them, fry them in deep fat, drain, pack them carefully in flat tins, and fill the tins with olive oil.
Oysters, so often the housewife's stand-by for a cocktail, soup, or scallop, are put up chiefly in Maryland, down the Atlantic coast to Florida and around the Gulf of Mexico. Along the north Atlantic coast they were once abundant, but now must be artificially cultivated, and fresh oysters bring such good prices in eastern cities that it does not pay to can them.
Who has not tasted, and asked for clam chowder? Three kinds of clams are packed, the hard and soft clams of the Atlantic coast, and a Pacific coast species, the razor clam. Shrimps, crabs, and lobsters make the foundation for some of the inland housewife's most attractive and nutritious salads. Shrimps are canned chiefly in States bordering on the Gulf of Mexico where they are abundant. Only the tail is eaten. Canned crabs come mostly from the Norfolk and Virginia coast and from Japan where crabs are plentiful and the people work for small wages to can them. Lobsters are caught in traps or pots along the North Atlantic coast, and brought alive to the cannery, boiled for about thirty minutes, and their meat taken from the shell in as large pieces as possible.
Only a beginning has been made along the sea coasts of America in preparing and canning anchovies, although these beautiful, small fish, blue-brown and silvery white, are abundant along our coasts. The Mediterranean is famous for anchovies, the

THIS SUMMER?

HAVEN'T you often said, "This summer I'll have a Hoover?"
Will you say it again this summer, or will you have it?
Never has the Hoover offered you so much relief from cleaning burdens, so much convenience, so much ease, so much extra-thoroughness in cleaning. The Greater Hoover, with its "Positive Agitation," removes in ordinary cleaning time 131% more dirt than even the best of previous Hoovers.
It is particularly easy for you to have a Hoover. You can pay only $6.25 down and a few small monthly amounts. If you have an old cleaner of any kind, we make a liberal allowance for it. Don't wait—telephone today for a demonstration.
You can also get "Positive Agitation" in a new popular-priced Hoover model. Ask us about it.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Friday noon at the Chillicothe Country club Miss Anne Harnount, of Chillicothe, entertained with a bridge luncheon honoring Miss Helen Bennett, of this city, who will be married June 23 to Mr. Foster Weldon, of Chicago, Illinois. Mrs. Harry W. Heffner, Mrs. J. P. Noecker and Miss Miriam Ruggles were among the guests.

About sixty members and friends of the Presbyterian Missionary society gathered at the manse for their June meeting. Thru the kindness of many friends the manse was profusely decorated with the beautiful June flowers. After a brief business meeting, presided over by Mrs. Clark Hunsicker, the speaker of the day, Mrs. Frank Throop, of Columbus, was introduced. Mrs. Throop was for many years a missionary in China, and her talk abounded in delightful personal reminiscences. Her photographs of Chinese Christian Bible women, of a Chinese Christian band, of doctors and nurses and of a little boy who was saved from death thru Mrs. Throop's care, added greatly to the interest of her talk.

During the social hour, which followed Miss Katherine May and Miss Helen Steele sang a pleasing duet, "Summer Voices" and Mrs. Joseph Wilder with Mrs. Toensmeier played the overture from "Worms," which was received with appreciation.

Delightful refreshments were served by the hostesses; Mrs. Toensmeier, Mrs. Sarah Crow, Mrs. J. O. Eagleson, Miss Grand-Girard, Mrs. Charles Smith and Mrs. D. V. Courtright.

The Rev. Howard E. Sheely, pastor of the Stoutsville charge of the Reformed church, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Sheely, York, Pennsylvania, and Miss Louise Crites, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Crites, of Stoutsville, were married Wednesday morning, June 8, at 10:30 o'clock in the Heidelberg Reformed church, Stoutsville. A ceremony unpretentious enough to make it simple in its beauty was conducted by the Rev. Arthur Lemming, Lima, Ohio. The officiating clergyman was a classmate of the Rev. Mr. Sheely during his college and seminary training.

The decorative scheme in the church was pink and white. The auditorium of the Heidelberg church was crowded to its capacity with relatives and friends of the principals in the ceremony. The bride was beautifully attired in a gown of white satin and wore a veil trimmed with orange blossoms and pearls. She entered the church on the arm of her father. Mrs. Sheely had for her maid of honor, Miss Melba White, of Athens, Ohio, with whom she was associated while a student at Ohio university. Miss White wore a pink satin crepe rowa gown and wore a leghorn picture hat. The bride carried a bouquet of white rose buds while her maid of honor's flowers were pink roses. The bride was also attended by her sister, little Rosemary Crites as a bridesmaid. She wore a frock of white crepe de-chine with hat to match and carried a basket filled with pink roses. Charles Sheely, a brother of the bridegroom, also formed a portion of the procession as ring bearer. The ring was carried in a large pink rose by Master Sheely. The Rev. Mr. Sheely had for his best man Forry W. Stauffer, of York, Pennsylvania, a former classmate of his while in college. Miss Edna Sheely, of York, a sister of the bridegroom, presided at the piano and played "Andante Religioso," by Thomas, as the processional. During the ceremony she rendered Salut D'Amour, by Elgar and for the recessional Mendelsshon's wedding march. The Rev. Mr. Sheely, present pastor of the Stoutsville charge of the Reformed church, is a graduate of the York, Pennsylvania, high school being a member of the class of 1919. The following year he entered Ursinus college, Collegeville, Pennsylvania, from which institution of learning he was graduated in 1923. He then planned a three year course of study in the Central Theological seminary, Dayton, Ohio. From that time forth he has been part of the Stoutsville charge. Mrs. Sheely received her preparatory school training in the Stoutsville high school having been graduated from that institution in 1920. She then took a course in Ohio university, Athens and Heidelberg university, Tiffin, Ohio. She graduated from the latter school with the class of 1924.

Immediately following the wedding ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. sion of thispor etai and Mrs. N. F. Stout. Rev. and Mrs. Sheely left on an extended motor trip thru the east. They expect to be at home about July 1, at the Reformed church parsonage in Stoutsville, O.

JACKSON TOWNSHIP

CLOTHING CLUB.

The third meeting of the Jackson township Clothing club was held at the schoolhouse June 1. Eighteen members were present. The roll call was answered by the question "Do You read 'True Stories'?"

At this meeting the first year girls drafted their apron patterns and those that had the material there started on them. The second year girls learned how to "hem patch." The third year girls examined the the "overhand patch" and looked over patterns for their dresses.

Our leader asked the second and third year girls questions about last year's work which I am sure helped the girls a lot.

Demonstrations were given by Dorothy Petty, Melva Phillips and Bessie Clark.

The next meeting will be held at the school house June 15, at 10 a. m.

Last year's honor girls were entertained to a fishing party given by our /ad/, Miss Mary Shortridge. A fine time was enjoyed by all.

STILL HAVE FAITH IN ODD "MEDICINE"

Faith in a bottle of medicine for all real and imaginary ailments is a characteristic of the English working classes. In insurance practice, in which the check of expense does not act and the physicians are complaisant, this leads to much wasteful expenditure on drugs. In London the insured numbered 1,890,788, July 6, last year, and for these 7,408,518 prescriptions were issued in the course of a year—an average of more than four apiece for the whole number and a much higher figure (not given) for those who were ill or thought themselves so ill as to consult a panel physician. The cost of the drugs was more than $5,000,000. One defense of this extensive drugging is that the bottle of medicine has a psychologic effect on the insured person which makes him feel better. After this, should the poor savage be despised for his faith in incantations and charms? —American Medical Journal.
